Details Of Mock Trial Of 'Doolittle Raid' Airmen Are Made Public

5 SENTENCES COMMUTED

SHANGHAI, Sept. 26—Captured enemy records provided the first definite confirmation today that the Japanese executed three American airmen who participated in the famed "Doolittle raid" on Tokyo April 18, 1942.

The records, including the official Japanese account of the perfidious court martial which condemned the men, disclosed that they died before a firing squad at a war prisoners' camp near Shanghai's Kiangwan race track October 15, 1942.

The fliers were identified as: 1st Lt. William G. Farrow of Washington and Darlington, S. C.; 1st Lt. Dean Hallmark of Dallas, Texas.

Sgt. Harold A. Spatz of Lebo, Kan., and New York state.

Fourth Man Died

A fourth member of the Doolittle team, 1st Lt. Robert J. Meder of Lakewood, Ohio, died in a Nanking prison December 1, 1943 of malnutrition, beri beri and dysentery. The remaining four of the eight Doolittle fliers captured by the Japanese were liberated last month and three already have been flown back to the United States.

The court martial records revealed that all eight fliers originally were sentenced to death, though the sentences of all but three subsequently were commuted to life imprisonment.

The records bear the signatures and official chops of the four chief Japanese officers who participated in what was little more than a mock trial. They have been placed on top of the American war crimes list in the Shanghai area for submission to the Chinese for action.

Officers Hunted

The wanted officers are: Lt. Col. Isakajo Toyama, presiding judge; 1st Lt. Wamitshu Yusei, associate judge; 2nd Lt. Okada Ryukel, associate judge, and Maj. Hata Ituro, trial prosecutor.

The court record gave the lie to Japanese claims that they did not impose special punishment on air crews. It specifically stated that the eight airmen were being tried "under that portion of the military regulations which comes under enemy plane crews."

The proceedings lasted only a half-hour and consisted merely of (Continued on Page Two)

Gen. Patton Is Called On Carpet

Gen. Eisenhower Wants Accounting Of What Goes On In Bavaria

FRANFURT, Sept. 26—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower called Gen. George S. Patton on the carpet today to give an account of his stewardship in Bavaria, where he favored the retention of Nazis in certain minor administrative posts.

Eisenhower yesterday ordered the removal of all Nazis throughout the American occupation zone from any administrative positions, civil or industrial. The order was effective today.

Patton, at a press conference at his Bavarian headquarters, advocated the use of Nazi officials in some secondary posts, at the same time insisting he was carrying out Eisenhower's directives to the letter and would continue to do so.

Eisenhower's chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Walter B. Smith, announced at a press conference that Patton had been summoned for the accounting.

Smith said that if Patton is unable to give a satisfactory report on "his stewardship," it was not known what disciplinary action Eisenhower would take.

He asked correspondents to watch closely for the next week to see if any marked changes for the better are made to improve U. S. political control in Bavaria.

OIL CONFERENCE IN SECOND DAY

Neither Side Gives Any Concessions In First Session At Chicago

By United Press

Labor and industry met head-on today in a significant reconversion test of collective bargaining as the government sought to end a strike which has cut off the flow of gasoline and oil from 24 refineries in six states.

At issue was the CIO oil workers' International union demand for a 30 per cent wage boost. Aimed at insuring wartime levels of take-home pay, this labor goal has key-noted most of the postwar strikes idling more than 425,000 American workers.

Officials of eight of the 14 big oil companies involved in the refinery strike, strangling three major petroleum areas, were deadlocked late last night in an emergency conciliation meeting with (Continued on Page Two)

VFW CONSIDERS INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATION

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—The Nation's second biggest veterans group, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, is tinkering with a plan for an international veterans' organization to work for peace.

This was learned today as leaders completed plans for a United Nations Veterans' Victory Conference. It will be held in Chicago Oct. 1 as a curtain raiser on the VFW national convention Oct. 2-4.

Servicemen from 25 countries will attend the session. It is billed as a demonstration of peacetime amity among men who fought side by side. All but two invited nations—Mexico and South Africa—have accepted.

If the trial balloon is well received at Chicago, a dream by some VFW leaders of international action for peace by the men who know war best—and hate it most—may come to something.

There was no official announcement on the international plan. However, Omar B. Ketchum, national legislative director, said that if delegates are impressed with the idea such a proposal could easily take shape at Chicago.

AS ELEVATOR STRIKE TIED UP MANHATTAN'S SKYSCRAPERS

HUNDREDS OF OFFICE WORKERS and business executives jam the lobby of the Empire State Building as New York's elevator operators began a strike immediately affecting 11,000 operators and nearly 1,000 buildings. All 72 elevators in the Empire State, world's tallest edifice, were stopped and the building's workers were faced with the problem of taking a long climb or going back home. (International)

IN THE HEART of New York's huge garment district, thousands of workers are shown gathered in the street, refusing to climb stairs, following the strike of service employees and building superintendents. Some 11,000 elevator operators, out of 23,000 members of the Building Service Employees' Union, began the strike, and garment workers announced that, out of sympathy, they would not walk up. OPA CLOTHING PLANS HIT SNAG

Percentage Increases Will Be Allowed To Speed Textile Delivery

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—The OPA's plan to put a lot more low-priced clothing on store shelves has been forced to make a slight retreat. The reason: a shortage of the kind of textiles that go into low-priced items.

Under the OPA's plan—which it called the maximum average price (MAP) order—most garment manufacturers were supposed to produce the same proportion of low-priced goods that they turned out in 1943.

But it ran into some snags. A lot of firms found it impossible to obtain goods to put into their lower price lines of 1943. And a study showed that in many cases the spread between 1943 and 1945 prices was so great that manufacturers would have had a tough time making readjustments.

So the OPA had to do this, effective yesterday:

Most manufacturers were permitted percentage increases, ranging from five to 20 per cent, over their maximum average prices. These increases were set individually for most of the 434 categories of apparel included in the maximum average price order. They cover many different kinds of men's, women's and children's outerwear, and underwear and nightwear made of cotton, rayon and wool.

Now this won't change individual price ceilings for clothes. What it means, in brief, is that manufacturers (Continued on Page Two)

GRAHAM PLEADS GUILTY, AWAITS COURT SENTENCE

Jesse Graham pleaded guilty to the charge of assault and battery on L. J. Thomas, August 23 in common pleas court Wednesday. He awaits sentence from Judge Emmitt Crist.

Sentence in the case of James Ladd who has pleaded guilty to the charge of robbery by force and violence of William Styers on September 6 is being held up pending a report on the condition of Mr. Styers who has been taken to the hospital.

The case of Lowell Davis, one of the operators of "the Oaks," tourist camp which has been closed by court injunction, charged with discharging firearms on the lawn, was being continued pending action on a demurrer to the indictment filed by the defendant.

Jap Weapons Ordered Reduced To Scrap To Aid In Rebuilding Country

TOKYO, Sept. 26—Gen. Douglas MacArthur today ordered virtually all Japanese weapons reduced to scrap for use in Japanese civilian relief.

He also directed the Japanese government to turn over all Army and Navy food, clothing, transportation and supplies to the Japanese home ministry for civilian relief with strict accounting to his headquarters.

All weapons not destroyed must be turned over to American headquarters for operational use, for training or for museums and war memorials.

Among the many items demanded for trophies were examples of every piece of equipment used by the engineering, medical, signal, chemical warfare, ordnance and quartermaster's branches of the army and navy.

These probably will be studied by Allied intelligence agents in the hope some hitherto secret Japanese weapons may be found. The items include everything from 150-millimeter mortars to a 1937 medium tank.

The first veterans of the European war to join in the occupation of Japan landed at Yokohama today.

They were members of the 97th division, which fought in the Terman Ruhr, and will relieve Pacific veterans of the 43rd division. Men of the 43rd will return to the United States aboard the same (Continued on Page Two)

YOUNG 'DIPS' HAD TRAINING IN MEXICO CITY

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 26—Police held 10 young pickpockets today who said they were trained by a nimble-fingered master in Mexico City and sent north to prey on the rich Americans.

Capt. Blaine Steed, whose bunco squad rounded up the gang, said the youths, all but one of them Mexicans, had lifted $30,000 from the pockets of Los Angeles pedestrians in the last few weeks. "It was the largest such gang we've ever had here," Steed said.

The youths ranged from 15 to 27 years old. They said they were getting ready to move on to Fresno, Calif., and had bought some snappy new automobiles for the trip.

Azor Mendosa and Jesus Renteria, both 20, put the finger they usually had in some one else's pocket on the other members of their gang yesterday after they were arrested while walking along a street minding their own business—other people's pocketbooks. The entire gang was arrested soon after.

HURLEY SEES LARGE MARKET AMONG CHINESE

LONG BEACH, Calif., Sept. 26—Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, U. S. ambassador to China en route to Washington to report to President Truman, predicted today that American industry will find one of its greatest fields of trade with China.

"The Chinese already have reduced their inflation exchange rate from 3000 to 1 to 1000 to 1," Hurley said.

Hurley declined to comment on his mission to bring together the factions of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and the Chinese Communists, other than to say that "the situation looks optimistic."

The ambassador credited the arrival of American supplies in large quantity in China for reduction of the inflation rate which had threatened China's entire economy.

Gen. Hurley volunteered his own ideas for Japan's sudden surrender. "Of course the atomic bomb had immediate effect and so did the entry of Russia, but the war in the Pacific was won before either of these events by American sea power which totally destroyed the Jap fleet."

HIROHITO WILL CALL THURSDAY ON MacARTHUR

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 26—Emperor Hirohito will make a personal call on Gen. Douglas MacArthur early tomorrow morning at the American embassy in Tokyo, CBS correspondent Tim Leimert said today in a broadcast from the Japanese capital.

The correspondent, quoting "informed quarters close to the imperial household," said the visit probably would be in the nature of a "courtesy call," rather than a full-fledged discussion of occupation problems.

Hirohito earlier had confirmed reports that he would meet with MacArthur in the near future but American officials had denied that a meeting had been scheduled for the embassy.

Navy Says 750,000 Will Be Out Of Uniform By December 25

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—The Navy said today that 750,000 more Navy men will be out of uniform by Christmas, but that it does not plan to abandon its point system in late Winter as the Army intends to do.

The latest information on Navy demobilization was given to the house naval affairs committee by Vice Adm. Louis E. Denfeld, chief of Navy personnel.

In a statement prepared for the committee Denfeld said that 88,155 men had been let out under the point system up to Sept. 21. He added that the daily discharge rate was 5,800 on Sept. 21 and is constantly increasing so that a total of 839,000 officers and enlisted men will have been discharged between Aug. 18 when the Navy began its demobilization, and Dec. 25.

Stated in simplest terms, Denfeld said, the Navy's full demobilization plans mean "the release of one out of every three men by mid-February, one out of every two by mid-April, two out of every three by mid-June and six out of every seven by the end of August..." (Continued on Page Two)

ATOMIC CONTROL TO BE STUDIED BY CONGRESSMEN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee planned today to begin an administration-backed congressional study on the future control of the atomic bomb.

The committee was expected to approve creation of a special 12-man joint Senate and House committee to study "development and control" of the atomic bomb.

The resolution, sponsored by Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, R., Mich., reportedly received President Truman's endorsement last week when Vandenberg and two other Senate committee members called at the White House.

Committee chairman Tom Connally, D., Tex., favors appointment of a joint committee to study the matter in preference to immediate legislation on the subject.

The President told Connally and Vandenberg last week that he would submit his recommendations to Congress in the near future. If a special committee is created, it may receive the President's recommendations.

Mill Levy Sought For Fairground

Commissioners To Be Asked To Certify New Levy To Election Board

Pickaway county voters may be asked to approve a one-mill levy to finance buildings at the new fairgrounds.

Pickaway county Agriculture Society members voted Tuesday night to ask the county commissioners to certify the election board a one-mill levy to run for three years. Russell Palm was named as chairman of the committee which will confer with the commissioners on the plan.

It is estimated the levy would produce about $140,000 to help finance the program outlined for the fairgrounds.

Construction is expected to start soon on the first of the buildings to be constructed. This is a 4-H club exhibit building and will be financed from funds voted last November when Pickaway county residents approved a one-mill levy for one year, which has yielded about $49,000.

The first fair, held on the grounds in September, attracted large crowds but the exhibits were handicapped by lack of permanent buildings. Tents were used to house livestock and other exhibits. The society feels that successful fairs can be presented every year if proper buildings are available for use.

NO COMPLAINTS MADE TO U. S.

Truman Has Received No Protests About Yank Rule In Nippon

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—President Truman said today he had never received any official notice that any of the interested Allied powers were dissatisfied with the occupation control of Japan under a single supreme commander, Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

He made the statement in response to press conference questions based on the new Russian position voiced at the London meeting of the big five foreign ministers in favor of an Allied control commission for Japan.

Mr. Truman pointed out that all of the interested nations had agreed originally to the central control under MacArthur and had since voiced no dissatisfaction.

He said emphatically that the appointment of MacArthur was concurred in by all the interested powers and that he now was functioning as the representative of all of them.

Under repeated questioning Mr. Truman said that there was ample opportunity for any of the interested nations to discuss with MacArthur (Continued on Page Two)

VETERANS ASK IMPEACHMENT OF SENATOR BILBO

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 26—Five-hundred war veterans at Baxter general hospital today demanded the impeachment of Sen. Theodore G. Bilbo (D., Miss.) for "spreading and fostering racial and religious discrimination."

The war veterans' committee for equal rights wrote the senior senator from Mississippi yesterday attacking him for his "vehement denunciation of various segments of the American people" on the floor of congress.

The committee, organized last July to protest discrimination against Japanese-American war veterans by a Spokane Veterans of Foreign Wars post, was roused to action today by Bilbo's widely-publicized statements and letters against what he called "Dagoes" and "kikes."

BRITAIN, CHINA JOIN AMERICAN FAR EAST STAND

Big Five Conference Not Called To Discuss Nip Plans, Reds Told

MOSCOW NOT SATISFIED

Molotov Appears Inclined To Criticize Yankee Occupation Program

LONDON, Sept. 26—Britain and China were reported today to have joined the United States in opposing consideration at the current big five conference of a Soviet proposal for establishment of an Allied control commission for Japan.

A Soviet source confirmed that Soviet foreign commissar had presented a memorandum to the foreign ministers' conference urging establishment of the Pacific council on grounds that the time had arrived for a "joint effort to secure the peace."

Molotov appeared inclined to criticize American handling of the occupation of Japan and desirous of gaining a voice in the matter. He suggested that Britain and China also join the proposed control council.

Molotov's memorandum was reported to have acknowledged the dominant part played by the United States in the Pacific war and suggested that the chairman of the proposed commission be an American.

One Soviet source said Molotov did not try to get immediate action on the creation of the commission, but only presented the memorandum to get on record with the Russian viewpoint.

U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes refused to discuss the Soviet memorandum on grounds that Pacific affairs were not on the agenda for the present big five meeting.

He said the procedure for the occupation of Japan already had been established by the terms of the Potsdam declaration and of Japan's surrender. Therefore, he said, the United States had not come to London prepared to discuss Japan.

British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Shi-Chieh subsequently supported the American position, informants said.

Though the United States appeared to have headed off consideration of Japan at the present meeting, informed sources said it was logical to assume that the next meeting of the foreign ministers' council would be devoted to the Pacific enemy.

United States was considered a likely site for the next meeting.

GOV. LAUSCHE REMAINS SILENT ON SENATE POST

COLUMBUS, Sept. 26—Gov. Frank J. Lausche today said his selection for an appointee to fill the senate seat of U. S. supreme court justice-elect Harold Burton was uncompleted.

The governor indicated that it would be at least one more day before he tendered a second appointment to the senate post.

Lausche still has ample list from which to select the new Ohio congressman despite the refusal of former Gov. James M. Cox to accept the job.

Latest addition to the list of possible candidates is Louis Bromfield of Mansfield, the novelist and farm leader.

Political observers were of the opinion that several Ohio public officials are high on the governor's list from which the appointment will be made.

State Commerce Director James W. Huffman and Liquor Director Robert M. Sohngen are considered to be about equal in chance for the selection while Welfare Director Frazier Reams, follows closely.

Navy Cmdr. Robert T. Secret, however, may have the desired position topping the list. Speculation centered about his name recently when Governor Lausche commented that "Cmdr. Secret is a very impressive lad."

Gen. Eisenhower Wants Accounting Of What Goes On In Bavaria

ATOMIC CONTROL TO BE STUDIED BY CONGRESSMEN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee planned today to begin an administration-backed congressional study on the future control of the atomic bomb.

The committee was expected to approve creation of a special 12-man joint Senate and House committee to study "development and control" of the atomic bomb.

The resolution, sponsored by Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, R., Mich., reportedly received President Truman's endorsement last week when Vandenberg and two other Senate committee members called at the White House.

Committee chairman Tom Connally, D., Tex., favors appointment of a joint committee to study the matter in preference to immediate legislation on the subject.

The President told Connally and Vandenberg last week that he would submit his recommendations to Congress in the near future. If a special committee is created, it may receive the President's recommendations.

Mill Levy Sought For Fairground

Commissioners To Be Asked To Certify New Levy To Election Board

Pickaway county voters may be asked to approve a one-mill levy to finance buildings at the new fairgrounds.

Pickaway county Agriculture Society members voted Tuesday night to ask the county commissioners to certify the election board a one-mill levy to run for three years. Russell Palm was named as chairman of the committee which will confer with the commissioners on the plan.

It is estimated the levy would produce about $140,000 to help finance the program outlined for the fairgrounds.

Construction is expected to start soon on the first of the buildings to be constructed. This is a 4-H club exhibit building and will be financed from funds voted last November when Pickaway county residents approved a one-mill levy for one year, which has yielded about $49,000.

The first fair, held on the grounds in September, attracted large crowds but the exhibits were handicapped by lack of permanent buildings. Tents were used to house livestock and other exhibits. The society feels that successful fairs can be presented every year if proper buildings are available for use.

Truman Has Received No Protests About Yank Rule In Nippon

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—President Truman said today he had never received any official notice that any of the interested Allied powers were dissatisfied with the occupation control of Japan under a single supreme commander, Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

He made the statement in response to press conference questions based on the new Russian position voiced at the London meeting of the big five foreign ministers in favor of an Allied control commission for Japan.

Mr. Truman pointed out that all of the interested nations had agreed originally to the central control under MacArthur and had since voiced no dissatisfaction. He said emphatically that the appointment of MacArthur was concurred in by all the interested powers and that he now was functioning as the representative of all of them.

Under repeated questioning Mr. Truman said that there was ample opportunity for any of the interested nations to discuss with MacArthur (Continued on Page Two)

VETERANS ASK IMPEACHMENT OF SENATOR BILBO

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 26—Five-hundred war veterans at Baxter general hospital today demanded the impeachment of Sen. Theodore G. Bilbo (D., Miss.) for "spreading and fostering racial and religious discrimination."

The war veterans' committee for equal rights wrote the senior senator from Mississippi yesterday attacking him for his "vehement denunciation of various segments of the American people" on the floor of congress.

The committee, organized last July to protest discrimination against Japanese-American war veterans by a Spokane Veterans of Foreign Wars post, was roused to action today by Bilbo's widely-publicized statements and letters against what he called "Dagoes" and "kikes."

Molotov Appears Inclined To Criticize Yankee Occupation Program

LONDON, Sept. 26—Britain and China were reported today to have joined the United States in opposing consideration at the current big five conference of a Soviet proposal for establishment of an Allied control commission for Japan.

A Soviet source confirmed that Soviet foreign commissar had presented a memorandum to the foreign ministers' conference urging establishment of the Pacific council on grounds that the time had arrived for a "joint effort to secure the peace."

Molotov appeared inclined to criticize American handling of the occupation of Japan and desirous of gaining a voice in the matter. He suggested that Britain and China also join the proposed control council.

Molotov's memorandum was reported to have acknowledged the dominant part played by the United States in the Pacific war and suggested that the chairman of the proposed commission be an American.

One Soviet source said Molotov did not try to get immediate action on the creation of the commission, but only presented the memorandum to get on record with the Russian viewpoint.

U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes refused to discuss the Soviet memorandum on grounds that Pacific affairs were not on the agenda for the present big five meeting.

He said the procedure for the occupation of Japan already had been established by the terms of the Potsdam declaration and of Japan's surrender. Therefore, he said, the United States had not come to London prepared to discuss Japan.

British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Shih-Chieh subsequently supported the American position, informants said.

Though the United States appeared to have headed off consideration of Japan at the present meeting, informants said it was logical to assume that the next meeting of the foreign ministers' council would be devoted to the Pacific enemy.

United States was considered a likely site for the next meeting.

GOV. LAUSCHE REMAINS SILENT ON SENATE POST

COLUMBUS, Sept. 26 — Gov. Frank J. Lausche today said his selection for an appointee to fill the senate seat of U. S. supreme court justice-elect Harold Burton was uncompleted.

The governor indicated that it would be at least one more day before he tendered a second appointment to the senate post.

Lausche still has ample list from which to select the new Ohio congressman despite the refusal of former Gov. James M. Cox to accept the job.

Political observers were of the opinion that several Ohio public officials are high on the governor's list from which the appointment will be made.

State Commerce Director James W. Huffman and Liquor Director Robert M. Sohngen are considered to be about equal in chance for the selection while Welfare Director Frazier Reams, follows closely.

Navy Cmdr. Robert T. Secret, however, may have the desired position topping the list. Speculation centered about his name recently when Governor Lausche commented that "Cmdr. Secret is a very impressive lad."

strengthening Russia's diplomatic bargaining position in the Pacific. Though Australia also has been anxious to force consideration of Japan at the present meeting, a source close to Australian foreign minister Herbert Evatt said he had no advance knowledge of the Soviet move.

Dr. Evatt, though not a member of the big five council, is remaining in London for the duration of the conference on guard against any Pacific decisions on which Australia has not been consulted.

Some hope for solution of Balkan problems confronting the council was seen in a Budapest announcement that the United States has offered to recognize the Soviet-supported government of Hungary.

The American offer was the first break in the heretofore solid Anglo-American front against Soviet-backed governments in south-east Europe.

However, the London Daily Telegraph said the course of the foreign ministers' meeting as a whole had been bitterly disappointing.

On most of the subjects discussed by the council, Russia has differed from the rest, the editorial said, and "it is clear that Russia is edging away more and more and more from an international solution of problems towards their regional treatment."

"This would explain both her refusal of an invitation to join in the supervision of the Greek elections—Greece being outside her sphere—and her virtual insistence that her view of conditions in the Balkan states—they being within her sphere—should prevail."

Arthur any question of occupation policy, either through the joint chiefs of staff or through the American government—and here he pointed out that the Russians had their own representative with MacArthur.

The President did not discuss the Russian proposal in London as such, except to say generally that none of the Allied nations had expressed dissatisfaction with this government over what is being done in Japan.

The President was sharp when a reporter cited reports that the accomplishments of the council of foreign ministers so far had amounted to "practically zero, a failure."

Dropping his usual smile, Mr. Truman said bluntly that these reports were all surmises, nothing but surmises. He recommended that the questioner wait to see the official reports on the big five meeting before terming it a failure.

The chief executive said disposition of Japanese fleet units probably would have to wait for a reparations conference for final solution, a conference similar to the one in progress now involving Germany.

Dwight Harper of Circleville who hauls lime for the Container Corporation has reported the theft of four wheels and tires, tools, a tarpulin, and a case of torches from his truck at South Bloomfield Tuesday morning to the sheriff's office.

The loss, estimated at $250, occurred after a bearing on the truck burnt out eight miles north of Circleville and Mr. Harper was forced to park his truck in South Bloomfield.

Upon his return to get his truck repaired, Mr. Harper discovered the theft.

Meantime, the Domei news agency, official mouthpiece of the Japanese government during the war, was on the way toward complete dissolution. Gen. Douglas MacArthur already has ordered it divorced from government control and favoritism.

Saiji Hasegawa, editor in chief of Domei, announced that its president, Inosuke Furuno, had decided to propose his own resignation and those of other executive directors at the next meeting of Domei's board later this week.

Furuno also will propose dissolution of Domei, effective as soon as a free news agency being formed by Tokyo's three main newspapers, Mainichi, Asahi and Yomiuri, has begun operating.

Mainichi editorially demanded abolition of the government's monopoly in broadcasting similar to that enjoyed in Britain by BBC.

KEY WAR PLANTS OF GERMANY TO BE DISMANTLED

BERLIN, Sept. 26—Lt. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, Gen. Eisenhower's deputy in charge of civil affairs in occupied Germany, outlined the future of German industry today as German workmen began dismantling machinery at five key war plants in the American zone.

"Our aim," Clay said "is destruction of the German war potential and the re-establishment in Germany of an interior economy which will give it a standard of living no greater than in surrounding countries. All industry in excess of that standard will be available for reparations."

Clay said reparations details had not been settled yet but that a handful of key plants, earmarked for certain removal, were being packed. These included an aviation engine factory at Munich, a ball-bearing works at Schweinfurt, a shipyard at Bremen, an underground power plant at Mannheim and an underground aviation parts plant.

OIL CONFERENCE IN SECOND DAY

OWIU representatives in Chicago.

Neither side had indicated any willingness to make concessions as the first session of the conciliation effort, presided over by Colorado supreme court justice William L. Knous, was recessed until 12 a. m. (EWT) today.

Chief stumbling block in the approach to an agreement was the union's insistence that bargaining for 52 hours' pay for 40 hours' work be industrywide. The oil companies want wage negotiations conducted separately in each plant.

The conference was called by U. S. conciliation service when the refinery walkouts, involving some 25,000 workers, brought resumption of gasoline rationing in some areas, closed many filling stations and threatened to fuel-starve motor transportation.

The government effort to end the gasoline strike spotlighted a wave of postwar reconversion labor troubles over the nation.

Elevator operator and building service strikes involving 15,000 workers paralyzed much of New York's business life. In Detroit, where strikes have crippled auto making, 82,000 were out. Home building suffered a setback in the northwest, with 60,000 strike-bound. Twenty-nine thousand coal miners left West Virginia and Pennsylvania pits.

As refinery operators and labor forces lined up their arguments at the Chicago conference, the oil workers union called a halt to spread of walkouts in the industry until the conciliation sessions are completed.

A charge that the OWIU was out "to break the Sinclair company" came at the meeting from a spokesman for the Sinclair Refining co., bringing an outburst of counter claims.

Daniel T. Pierce, assistant to the president of Sinclair, told the three-man conciliation panel that O. A. Knight, OWIU president, "is directly responsible for the score or more strikes now in effect."

Pierce charged that "we are informed by the spokesmen of the local at our East Chicago, Ind., refinery that it was the purpose of the union to break the Sinclair company." He added, "It is not our purpose to be broken."

But this was denied by Knight, who told reporters:

"Instead of indicating any effort to break the company, the fact is that Sinclair can well afford to reduce hours and make more jobs for returning veterans without reducing the workers' income."

"Even with the adjustment as requested by the union, Sinclair still would be able to make more money than in prewar years."

Knight also denied responsibility for the refinery tieup. The union head said he was "having the greatest difficulty in restraining workers in all parts of the country from instituting further work stoppages."

Asserting the walkouts were "deliberately planned and carried out in accordance with" instructions of OWIU officials, Pierce implied that his company saw little chance for success of the conciliation conference.

He claimed the Sinclair company had no "present dispute" with its employees and a dispute had been "manufactured for the avowed purpose of coercing us into signing a blank check on an unknown future."

The Chicago meeting was considered the first important test of the labor department's revamped postwar conciliation service. J. O. Hubbard, Houston, Tex., and A. J. Hummert, St. Louis, are the other panel members.

a recital of the provisions of the military regulations under which the fliers were arraigned. The trial was conducted entirely in Japanese.

The official account of the proceedings also emphasized that the airmen "under provisions of article 3 of the military regulations must be punished as written in the text." It then listed all eight men and said they were "hereby sentenced to death." No explanation was given for the subsequent commutation of five of the sentences.

As the Red Cross Following the execution, the bodies of the three men shot to death were sent to a crematorium in the Honkew section of Shanghai. Their ashes later were turned over to the international Red Cross by the commander of the Woosung war prisoner camp with the explanation that they were the "remains of prisoners who died" in the camp.

The fliers whose sentences were commuted never were certain of the fate of their companions and no irrefutable evidence of the executions was available before the discovery of the court martial records.

Japanese propaganda broadcasts in late 1942 and 1943 referred vaguely to the execution of "several" of the Doolittle airmen, but never gave any dates or names.

However, the U. S. state department protested to Tokyo on the basis of the broadcasts and the late President Roosevelt denounced the executions as outright murder. He said it would make the American people "more determined than ever to blot out the shameful militarism of Japan."

Deaths and Funerals

MRS. FLORENCE BERGER

Funeral services will be held for Mrs. Florence Y. Berger, 72, who died at her home at 406 South Richardson avenue in Columbus, Wednesday at 9:30 a. m., will be held at Grace Lutheran church in Columbus Friday at 2 p. m.

Her sister, Mrs. Jennie Groce, resides in Circleville. Mrs. Berger was the widow of Samuel Berger and the daughter of the late Silas and Mary A. Young of Pickaway county.

Besides her sister, she is survived by two daughters, the Misses Ruth and Alice at home. She was the mother of six children, four of whom preceded her in death.

She was a member of Grace Lutheran Church, the Women's Missionary Society, and a Gold Star Mother of Southway Post of the American Legion.

Interment, with a brief service at the grave, will be at Forest cemetery in Circleville.

MISS MARY ROBERTS

Miss Mary Roberts, 80, native of Circleville died Tuesday in St. Anthony's hospital, Columbus, where she had been a fracture patient. Miss Robert fell at the home of a niece, Mrs. George Hayes, Powell Ave., with whom she made her home, and suffered a fracture of the left hip recently.

Her parents were Thomas and Mary Lyons Roberts, natives of Ireland. She was orphaned at the age of two months and was reared by an aunt, Mrs. James Welch, West Ohio street. She will be remembered as a clerk at the Moeller Dry Goods store, which was located in the room now occupied by Harpster and Yost hardware.

She is the last of her immediate family, her only survivors being nieces and nephews. Besides the niece with whom she lived, others surviving are Mrs. Fred Donnelly, Columbus; Mrs. Ned Emerson, Mrs. Lyman Penn, Miss Florence Roberts, Pickaway township, Mrs. George Hitler, Washington township; James, Walter, George and Edward Roberts are nephews.

Funeral services will be conducted at St. Patrick's church, Columbus, Thursday morning at 9 a. m. with burial in St. Joseph's cemetery at Shadyside. Friends may call at the Egan-Ryan funeral home until time for the services.

Gen. Patton Is Called On Carpet

the use of certain Nazis in office by saying:

"His mouth does not always carry out the functions of his brain. George acts on the theory that it is better to be damned than to say nothing—that some publicity is better than none."

He said Eisenhower and his headquarters were convinced that Patton was making every effort to carry out the de-Nazification program to the best of his ability.

But he added that certain phases of the program needed re-amping.

Smith, outlining Eisenhower's policy for governing Germany, said:

"Eisenhower does not tolerate that any subordinate be in deference to this policy."

He enumerated the main points of the policy as follows:

1. Complete de-Nazification, even though some efficiency is lost in the process.

2. Placing the burden of care for displaced persons on the Germans as much as possible.

3. Re-establishing German interior economy as is necessary for everyday living.

4. Removal of excess machinery—breaking up war machinery.

5. Breaking down any remaining vestiges of German military ambitions.

Smith said Patton's claim that certain Nazis were necessary in key positions to carry out successfully the functions of life could be disregarded.

"Patton's statement was in contradiction to Eisenhower's order," Smith said. "I think he (Patton) has probably changed his mind by now."

He said he did not know whether Patton, at the time of his statement, had received Eisenhower's military government order banning the Nazis from supervisory positions.

Patton as a soldier will carry out the orders of his commander, even though a difference of opinion might be involved, Smith said.

Smith said Eisenhower's headquarters had not heard reports that Patton's military policemen were telling German natives that they were "Patton's Gestapo."

Correspondents who raised the question said such things had happened, and even though it was done in jest some Germans accepted it as a fact.

Headquarters is not worried about the Nazis or Nazism in Bavaria, Smith said. He said the greatest apparent danger there was a leaning toward ultra-conservatism.

Lower echelons of the military government frequently bucked headquarters directives outlawing the use of Nazis in supervisory positions, Smith said.

He said the railroads present the greatest problem for the military government because their functions depend on skilled workers who in many cases were Nazis.

Smith conceded that Patton's governmental position presented difficulties in that by the constant firing of key men he was undermining the whole structure. But he reiterated Eisenhower's order that all Nazis must be removed from supervisory positions at once.

Smith said that if there was a failure in government this winter after a housecleaning of Nazis, and starvation and deaths from inadequate facilities occurred, then the press would be the first to blame Patton for poor judgment in ruling his mountain country.

"But wait a week or so," Smith concluded, "I am sure you will see a marked improvement."

OPA CLOTHING PLANS HIT SNAG

facturers will be permitted to make a greater proportion of higher-priced apparel and a little less lower-priced stuff than had been contemplated originally.

The OPA believes, however, that after the first of the year the textile supply will improve and manufacturers will have had time to clear up previous commitments to make high-priced garments. It then hopes to return to its original objectives.

Acting under the mandate of the Bankhead amendment to the stabilization extension act of 1944, the OPA has announced manufacturers' price increases for another group of cotton textile items. These increases ranging from 3.2 to 14.82 per cent, cover towels, flannels, print cloth fabrics, onaburgs and seamless woven bags. The result will be that civilians eventually will have to pay higher prices for towels and for flannels, shirts, outerwear, and nightwear, and diapers.

Under the Bankhead amendment, the OPA must set new price ceilings to return to cotton textile mills their conversion costs and peacetime earnings on net worth for each item, and to permit growers' prices for cotton to reach parity.

The OPA previously granted such price increases for carded and combed yarns, bed linens, shirting cambrays, and coverlets, denims, and a number of other items.

DEVEREUX SEES SON FIRST TIME IN FOUR YEARS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—Lt. Col. James P. S. Devereux, who made Wake island a symbol of American valor, came home today to his most treasured moment—reunion with the son he had not seen for four agonizing years.

There was no noisy welcome for the gallant hero who came back from nearly 45 months of Japanese captivity. No hands played as he stepped from a train at Washington's Union station.

But there was a smiling boy, his face freshly scrubbed—11-year-old Paddy Devereux.

Not a word was spoken between them as father and son clutched each other tightly. Both appeared too overcome with emotion to speak.

There was a tragic touch to the reunion.

The wife and mother who had seen Devereux off to Wake island on another September morning four years ago were missing. Devereux's wife Mary died seven months after he surrendered Wake island on December 23, 1942. His mother, Mrs. Annie Slott Devereux, died last October.

Big Five Conference Not Called To Discuss Nip Plans, Reds Told

strengthening Russia's diplomatic bargaining position in the Pacific. Though Australia also has been anxious to force consideration of Japan at the present meeting, a source close to Australian foreign minister Herbert Evatt said he had no advance knowledge of the Soviet move.

Dr. Evatt, though not a member of the big five council, is remaining in London for the duration of the conference on guard against any Pacific decisions on which Australia has not been consulted.

Some hope for solution of Balkan problems confronting the council was seen in a Budapest announcement that the United States has offered to recognize the Soviet-supported government of Hungary.

The American offer was the first break in the heretofore solid Anglo-American front against Soviet-backed governments in southeast Europe.

However, the London Daily Telegraph said the course of the foreign ministers' meeting as a whole had been bitterly disappointing.

On most of the subjects discussed by the council, Russia has differed from the rest, the editorial said, and "it is clear that Russia is edging away more and more and more from an international solution of problems towards their regional treatment."

"This would explain both her refusal of an invitation to join in the supervision of the Greek elections—Greece being outside her sphere—and her virtual insistence that her view of conditions in the Balkan states—being within her sphere—should prevail."

NO COMPLAINTS MADE TO U. S.

Arthur any question of occupation policy, either through the joint chiefs of staff or through the American government—and here he pointed out that the Russians had their own representative with MacArthur.

The President did not discuss the Russian proposal in London as such, except to say generally that none of the Allied nations had expressed dissatisfaction with this government over what is being done in Japan.

The President was sharp when a reporter cited reports that the accomplishments of the council of foreign ministers so far had amounted to "practically zero, a failure."

Dropping his usual smile, Mr. Truman said bluntly that these reports were all surmises, nothing but surmises. He recommended that the questioner wait to see the official reports on the big five meeting before terming it a failure.

The chief executive said disposition of Japanese fleet units probably would have to wait for a reparations conference for final solution, a conference similar to the one in progress now involving Germany.

As for the disposition of the German fleet, the President pointed out that at Berlin, the big three worked out a three-way division of its remaining units with one group going to Russia, one to Great Britain and one to the United States.

He would not say, however, whether the same formula would apply to disposing of Jap naval strength.

In the course of the broad international discussion which took place at today's press conference, one reporter sought the President's reaction to a newspaper column yesterday which expressed the belief that this country is now in a more isolationist mood than it was in 1920.

The President said he did not agree and if we ever get to that point we are on our road to ruin as, as he put it, we were in 1920.

Dwight Harper of Circleville who hauls lime for the Container Corporation has reported the theft of four wheels and tires, tools, a tarpaulin, and a case of torches from his truck at South Bloomfield Tuesday morning to the sheriff's office.

The loss, estimated at $250, occurred after a bearing on the truck burnt out eight miles north of Circleville and Mr. Harper was forced to park his truck in South Bloomfield.

Upon his return to get his truck repaired, Mr. Harper discovered the theft.

ships which departed the 97th division.

Low-point men in the 43rd will be combed out and attached to the newly-arrived unit.

From Okinawa came word that a large task force has just left that island base for the China coast to land two Marine divisions in the Tientsin area next Sunday.

Chinese military commanders are scheduled to accept the surrender of Japanese invasion forces in the Tientsin area Sunday. The Marines will act merely as policemen who will accept surrendered arms and munitions until Marshal Chiang Kai-Shek's forces arrive in sufficient number to take over.

Meantime, the Domei news agency, official mouthpiece of the Japanese government during the war, was on the way toward complete dissolution. Gen. Douglas MacArthur already has ordered it divorced from government control and favoritism.

Saiji Hasegawa, editor in chief of Domei, announced that its president, Inosuke Furuno, had decided to propose his own resignation and those of other executive directors at the next meeting of Domei's board later this week.

Furuno also will propose dissolution of Domei, effective as soon as a free news agency being formed by Tokyo's three main newspapers, Mainichi, Asahi and Yomiuri, has begun operating.

Mainichi editorially demanded abolition of the government's monopoly in broadcasting similar to that enjoyed in Britain by BBC.

KEY WAR PLANTS OF GERMANY TO BE DISMANTLED

BERLIN, Sept. 26—Lt. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, Gen. Eisenhower's deputy in charge of civil affairs in occupied Germany, outlined the future of German industry today as German workmen began dismantling machinery at five key war plants in the American zone.

"Our aim," Clay said "is destruction of the German war potential and the re-establishment in Germany of an interior economy which will give it a standard of living no greater than in surrounding countries. All industry in excess of that standard will be available for reparations."

Clay said reparations details had not been settled yet but that a handful of key plants, earmarked for certain removal, were being packed. These included an aviation engine factory at Munich, a ball-bearing works at Schweinfurt, a shipyard at Bremen, an underground power plant at Mannheim and an underground aviation parts plant.

TRUMAN VOICES DISAPPOINTMENT OVER SETBACK

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—President Truman today voiced disappointment over house ways and means committee action on the bill to expand unemployment compensation, but questioned whether the committee's action had killed the bill.

He was asked at his news conference for his reaction to committee action in postponing indefinitely the unemployment compensation legislation.

He replied that he did not know that the committee had killed it, but that he was sorry if such was the case and that the house would hear from him later on the subject.

A reporter told the President the current strike situation was a large factor in house action on the compensation bill, asking what he thought about this.

Mr. Truman's reply was that the secretary of labor is working on this matter and that he, the President, is confident that he will bring it to a successful conclusion.

CHECK SIGNER LEAVES SERVICE OF GOVERNMENT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—The man who has probably signed more checks than anyone else in the world is going to leave the government after 44 years of service. He is Guy Fletcher Allen, veteran director of the division of disbursement, whose name has appeared on more than 964,000,000 government checks totaling over $102,000,000,000.

Actually, Fletcher didn't sign the checks personally. It was all done with a specially made machine with his signature cast in a die.

As a parting note before he went into retirement Allen took up a real pen yesterday to sign his last check himself. "You see," he explained, "it's my own last paycheck."

He will be succeeded by Emmet J. Brennan, his assistant.

OIL CONFERENCE IN SECOND DAY

OWIU representatives in Chicago. Neither side had indicated any willingness to make concessions as the first session of the conciliation effort, presided over by Colorado supreme court justice William L. Knous, was recessed until 12 a. m. (EWT) today.

Chief stumbling block in the approach to an agreement was the union's insistence that bargaining for 52 hours' pay for 40 hours' work be industrywide. The oil companies want wage negotiations conducted separately in each plant.

The conference was called by U. S. conciliation service when the refinery walkouts, involving some 25,000 workers, brought resumption of gasoline rationing in some areas, closed many filling stations and threatened to fuel-starve motor transportation.

The government effort to end the gasoline strike spotlighted a wave of postwar reconversion labor troubles over the nation.

Elevator operator and building service strikes involving 15,000 workers paralyzed much of New York's business life. In Detroit, where strikes have crippled auto making, 82,000 were out. Home building suffered a setback in the northwest, with 60,000 strike-bound. Twenty-nine thousand coal miners left West Virginia and Pennsylvania pits.

As refinery operators and labor forces lined up their arguments at the Chicago conference, the oil workers union called a halt to spread of walkouts in the industry until the conciliation sessions are completed.

A charge that the OWIU was out "to break the Sinclair company" came at the meeting from a spokesman for the Sinclair Refining co., bringing an outburst of counter claims.

Daniel T. Pierce, assistant to the president of Sinclair, told the three-man conciliation panel that O. A. Knight, OWIU president, "is directly responsible for the score or more strikes now in effect."

Pierce charged that "we are informed by the spokesman of the local at our East Chicago, Ind., refinery that it was the purpose of the union to break the Sinclair company." He added, "it is not our purpose to be broken."

But this was derided by Knight, who told reporters:

"Instead of indicating any effort to break the company, the fact is that Sinclair can well afford to reduce hours and make more jobs for returning veterans without reducing the workers' income."

"Even with the adjustment as requested by the union, Sinclair still would be able to make more money than in prewar years."

Knight also denied responsibility for the refinery tieup. The union head said he was "having the greatest difficulty in restraining workers in all parts of the country from instituting further work stoppages."

Asserting the walkouts were "deliberately planned and carried out in accordance with" instructions of OWIU officials, Pierce implied that his company saw little chance for success of the conciliation conference.

He claimed the Sinclair company had no "present dispute" with its employees and a dispute had been "manufactured for the avowed purpose of coercing us into signing a blank check on an unknown future."

The Chicago meeting was considered the first important test of the labor department's revamped postwar conciliation service. J. O. Hubbard, Houston, Tex., and A. J. Hummert, St. Louis, are the other panel members.

CAPTURED NIP PAPERS TELL OF THREE DEATHS

Details Of Mock Trial Of 'Doolittle Raid' Airmen Are Made Public

a recital of the provisions of the military regulations under which the fliers were arraigned. The trial was conducted entirely in Japanese.

The official account of the proceedings also emphasized that the airmen "under provisions of article 3 of the military regulations must be punished as written in the text." It then listed all eight men and said they were "hereby sentenced to death." No explanation was given for the subsequent commutation of five of the sentences.

Ashes To Red Cross

Following the execution, the bodies of the three men shot to death were sent to a crematorium in the Honkew section of Shanghai. Their ashes later were turned over to the International Red Cross by the commander of the Woosung war prisoner camp with the explanation that they were the "remains of prisoners who died" in the camp.

The fliers whose sentences were commuted never were certain of the fate of their companions and no irrefutable evidence of the executions was available before the discovery of the court martial records.

Japanese propaganda broadcasts in late 1942 and 1943 referred vaguely to the execution of "several" of the Doolittle airmen, but never gave any dates or names.

However, the U. S. state department protested to Tokyo on the basis of the broadcasts and the late President Roosevelt denounced the executions as outright murder. He said it would make the American people "more determined than ever to blot out the shameful militarism of Japan."

Deaths and Funerals

MRS. FLORENCE BERGER

Funeral services will be held for Mrs. Florence Y. Berger, 72, who died at her home at 406 South Richardson avenue in Columbus, Wednesday at 9:30 a. m., will be held at Grace Lutheran church in Columbus Friday at 2 p. m.

Her sister, Mrs. Jennie Groce, resides in Circleville. Mrs. Berger was the widow of Samuel Berger and the daughter of the late Silas and Mary A. Young of Pickaway county.

Besides her sister, she is survived by two daughters, the Misses Ruth and Alice at home. She was the mother of six children, four of whom preceded her in death.

She was a member of Grace Lutheran Church, the Women's Missionary Society, and a Gold Star Mother of Southway Post of the American Legion.

Interment, with a brief service at the grave, will be at Forest cemetery in Circleville.

MISS MARY ROBERTS

Miss Mary Roberts, 80, native of Circleville died Tuesday in St. Anthony's hospital, Columbus, where she had been a fracture patient. Miss Robert fell at the home of a niece, Mrs. George Hayes, Powell Ave., with whom she made her home, and suffered a fracture of the left hip recently.

Her parents were Thomas and Mary Lyons Roberts, natives of Ireland. She was orphaned at the age of two months and was reared by an aunt, Mrs. James Welch, West Ohio street. She will be remembered as a clerk at the Moeller Dry Goods store, which was located in the room now occupied by Harpster and Yost hardware.

She is the last of her immediate family, her only survivors being nieces and nephews. Besides the niece with whom she lived, others surviving are Mrs. Fred Donnelly, Columbus; Mrs. Ned Emerson, Mrs. Lyman Penn, Miss Florence Roberts, Pickaway township, Mrs. George Hitler, Washington township; James, Walter, George and Edward Roberts are nephews.

Funeral services will be conducted at St. Patrick's church, Columbus, Thursday morning at 9 a. m. with burial in St. Joseph's cemetery at Shadewille. Friends may call at the Egan-Ryan funeral home until time for the services.

Gen. Patton Is Called On Carpet

the use of certain Nazis in office by saying:

"His mouth does not always carry out the functions of his brain. George acts on the theory that it is better to be damned than to say nothing—that some publicity is better than none."

He said Eisenhower and his headquarters were convinced that Patton was making every effort to carry out the de-Nazification program to the best of his ability.

But he added that certain phases of the program needed revamping.

Smith, outlining Eisenhower's policy for governing Germany, said:

"Eisenhower does not tolerate that any subordinate be in deference to this policy."

He enumerated the main points of the policy as follows:

1. Complete de-Nazification, even though some efficiency is lost in the process.

2. Placing the burden of care for displaced persons on the Germans as much as possible.

3. Re-establishing German interior economy as is necessary for everyday living.

4. Removal of excess machinery—breaking up war machinery.

5. Breaking down any remaining vestiges of German military ambitions.

Smith said Patton's claim that certain Nazis were necessary in key positions to carry out successfully the functions of life could be disregarded.

"Patton's statement was in contradiction to Eisenhower's order," Smith said. "I think he (Patton) has probably changed his mind by now."

He said he did not know whether Patton, at the time of his statement, had received Eisenhower's military government order banning the Nazis from supervisory positions.

Patton as a soldier will carry out the orders of his commander, even though a difference of opinion might be involved, Smith said.

Smith said Eisenhower's headquarters had not heard reports that Patton's military policemen were telling German natives that they were "Patton's Gestapo."

Correspondents who raised the question said such things had happened, and even though it was done in jest some Germans accepted it as a fact.

Headquarters is not worried about the Nazis or Nazism in Bavaria, Smith said. He said the greatest apparent danger there was a leaning toward ultra-conservatism.

Lower echelons of the military government frequently bucked headquarters directives outlawing the use of Nazis in supervisory positions, Smith said.

He said the railroads present the greatest problem for the military government, because their functions depend on skilled workers who in many cases were Nazis.

Smith conceded that Patton's governmental position presented difficulties in that by the constant firing of key men he was undermining the whole structure. But he reiterated Eisenhower's order that all Nazis must be removed from supervisory positions at once.

Smith said that if there was a failure in government this winter after a housecleaning of Nazis, and starvation and deaths from inadequate facilities occurred, then the press would be the first to blame Patton for poor judgment in ruling his mountain country.

"But wait a week or so," Smith concluded, "I am sure you will see a marked improvement."

OPA CLOTHING PLANS HIT SNAG

facturers will be permitted to make a greater proportion of higher-priced apparel and a little less lower-priced stuff than had been contemplated originally.

The OPA believes, however, that after the first of the year the textile supply will improve and manufacturers will have had time to clear up previous commitments to make high-priced garments. It then hopes to return to its original objectives.

Acting under the mandate of the Bankhead amendment to the stabilization extension act of 1944, the OPA has announced manufacturers' price increases for another group of cotton textile items. These increases ranging from 3.2 to 14.82 per cent, cover towels, flannels, print cloth fabrics, osanburgs and seamless woven bags. The result will be that civilians eventually will have to pay higher prices for towels and for flannels, shirts, underwear, and nightwear, and diapers.

Under the Bankhead amendment, the OPA must set new price ceilings to return to cotton textile mills their conversion costs and peacetime earnings on net worth for each item, and to permit growers' prices for cotton to reach parity. The OPA previously granted such price increases for carded and combed yarns, bed linens, shirting cambrays, and covers, denims, and a number of other items.

BIG 5 COUNCIL MAY LOCATE AT SAN FRANCISCO

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—The question of where to locate the United Nations organization has boiled down to San Francisco and Geneva, with the odds favoring San Francisco, it was learned today.

According to information reaching here, Great Britain is the only member of the big five to hold out for a European site, preferably Geneva.

Russia and China favor San Francisco and France also leans that way. This country has remained officially mute in its preference but hopes unofficially the others will go along for a U. S. city.

One of the pressing duties of the UNO executive committee now meeting in London is the recommendation of a city for a permanent site of the world organization. This recommendation in turn would be considered by the preparatory commission and voted upon by the first UNO assembly scheduled to meet in London Dec. 4.

It appeared possible that the late President Roosevelt's suggestion to hold UNO assembly meetings in different nations each year may be followed, although the secretariat and security council would remain at the permanent site.

DEVEREUX SEES SON FIRST TIME IN FOUR YEARS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—Lt. Col. James P. S. Devereux, who made Wake Island a symbol of American valor, came home today to his most treasured moment—reunion with the son he had not seen for four agonizing years.

There was no noisy welcome for the gallant hero who came back from nearly 45 months of Japanese captivity. No bands played as he stepped from a train at Washington's Union station.

But there was a smiling boy, his face freshly scrubbed—11-year-old Paddy Devereux.

Not a word was spoken between them as father and son clutched each other tightly. Both appeared too overcome with emotion to speak.

There was a tragic touch to the reunion.

The wife and mother who had seen Devereux off to Wake Island on another September morning four years ago were missing. Devereux's wife Mary died seven months after he surrendered Wake Island on December 23, 1942. His mother, Mrs. Annie Snott Devereux, died last October.

Devereux was scheduled to go to Marine Corps headquarters to tell the full story of the men of Wake Island and their bitter battle against overwhelming odds.

He also will be given the silver leaves of a lieutenant colonel—a rank to which he was elevated some time after his capture but which he has not yet officially assumed. He will also be decorated with the Navy Cross.

The Navy is cutting its strength to 550,000 by next Sept. 1.

Denfeld said the number of points required for discharge would be lowered from time to time. But to be fair to all, he added, the point system based on its present factors must be maintained.

At present enlisted men are eligible for discharge with 44 points, WAVES with 29, male officers 49 and female officers 35.

Denfeld said there was pressure to revise the point system to give more credit for age, dependency or length service, but that he felt no change should be made because to increase credit for one factor would force reduction for another.

Any enlisted Navy man with three or more children under 18 is now eligible for immediate discharge. Discussing hardship releases, Denfeld explained why the Navy did not feel it could grant them on such grounds as opportunity for good jobs or inability to register in time for school.

Meanwhile congressmen were pleased by the White House announcement that only 1,950,000 soldiers — instead of 2,500,000 — would be needed by next July 1.

"That's getting down to business," commented Sen. Edwin C. Johnson, D. Colo. "Let the Army knock another half-million off that figure and I'll see eye-to-eye with them."

NEWS OF OUR MEN and WOMEN IN UNIFORM

Mrs. James Russell Skaggs, 213 East Union street, has received word from her husband that he has been promoted to the rank of staff sergeant.

Sgt. Skaggs has been overseas for a year and one-half and is now in Germany awaiting redeployment. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Skaggs, 121 West Water street.

His address is as follows: S-Sgt. James R. Skaggs, ASN-35224579, Co. G., 32nd Armored Regt., APO 253, c-o PM, New York, N. Y.

T-Sgt. Russell Henry has returned to his home with his wife, Mrs. Margaret Adkins Henry in Columbus. Mrs. Adkins is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Adkins of East Main street. T-Sgt. Henry holds the Air Medal.

He was discharged at Camp Atterbury, Ind., Saturday and arrived home Sunday. He served overseas 19 months, mostly at Saipan, as a crew chief on a C-47 of the Ninth Troop Carrier Squadron of the Seventh Air Force. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry of Atlanta.

Pvt. Eleanor Strawser, daughter of Mrs. Gladys Wiggins, of North Court street, arrived home Tuesday to spend a 24-day furlough. Pvt. Strawser has been serving with the Air Technical Service Command at Oakland, Calif.

TM 2-C Jim Morrison, who was stationed at Key West, Fla., during the past 18 months, has been transferred to Pearl Harbor. His new address is as follows: Jim B. Morrison, T. M. 2-C-851-00-40, U. S. Naval Receiving Station, Navy Number 128—General Detail, c-o PM, San Francisco, Calif.

S 2-C John Musselman, USNR, route 1 Orient, is serving on the USS Wasp aircraft carrier with the 3rd Fleet on a victory cruise off Tokyo.

The Wasp's record week, March 14-20, is still the main topic of conversation aboard the carrier. The ship took a 500-pound bomb through the flight deck, suffering 102 casualties. Within 50 minutes she was ready to launch her planes.

In that week the Wasp and her planes shot down 14 aircraft and destroyed six on the ground, scored two 500-pound bomb hits on each of two enemy carriers, dropped two 1,000-pound bombs on a battleship, three 500-pounders on a heavy cruiser, a 1,000-pounder on a big cargo ship and heavily strafed a large submarine.

Sgt. Sterling Christy of Amanda was one of hundreds of Ohio soldiers discharged from the armed forces at the Indiantown Gap, Pa., separation center.

First Lt. Lynn M. Borders of 52 West Pickaway street, Kingston, arrived at the Reception Station at Indiantown Gap, Pa., for redeployment Monday. Prior to reassignment, he will be given leave.

Major Edward L. Montgomery has returned to his home here on a terminal leave from his station at Camp Breckenridge, Ky. The popular local doctor will have been serving in the Army Medical Corps five years in October. He served in the Pacific area.

Charles Vernon Furness, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mack White of route 1 Circleville, Pickaway township, has arrived home Wednesday from 21 months service overseas. He received his discharge with 85 points at Camp Atterbury, Ind.

He has six battle stars. Four of his brothers are still in service. He and his wife of Amanda will be at home with his parents for awhile.

Pvt. Pearl Valentine telephoned avenue, Tuesday to report his arrival, who lives at 377 Weldon road in the United States. He is being treated at Letherman's hospital in San Francisco for injuries received during the Philippines campaign. He reported his condition is "improved". His address is Pvt. Pearl W. Valentine 35293686, Letherman's hospital, Ward B2, San Francisco.

Pvt. Harry E. Robinson, son of Mrs. Clarence Robinson, 375 Weldon avenue, stationed with the Marines at Parris Island, reports he has seen no one from Circleville since his arrival there three months ago, shortly after his graduation from Circleville high school. His address is Pvt. Harry E. Robinson 1015658, Plat. 169, Fifth Receiving Barracks, Parris Island, S. C.

SOCIETY MAKES BUILDING PLANS

Agriculture Board Decides Location Of 4-H Building At Fairgrounds

Location and size of a 4-H exhibit building to be constructed on the fair grounds was discussed at the meeting of the Pickaway County Agricultural Society Tuesday night.

It was decided that the building will be located southeast of the Musser building and it will be 60 by 100 in size. Ralph E. Crook, the architect from Lancaster, was present.

A road commission to study the condition of roads for necessary improvements was appointed by President Ben H. Gordon.

Treasurer Robert G. Colville reported on finances of the fair held recently.

NOMURA CLAIMS JAPS, EXPECTED ONLY A DRAW

TOKYO, Sept. 26—Adm. Kichisaburo Nomura, Japan's last ambassador to the United States, said today that the most Japan expected from war with the United States was a draw and that some Nipponese naval officers had opposed going to war in 1941.

Nomura in an interview published in Tokyo's Yomiuri Hochi said Japan "never had a chance" against the United States.

During the war he had told the Japanese people in the same newspaper that the United States war effort would not be able to withstand heavy manpower losses inflicted by the Japanese.

NEWS OF OUR MEN and WOMEN IN UNIFORM

Mrs. James Russell Skaggs, 213 East Union street, has received word from her husband that he has been promoted to the rank of staff sergeant.

Sgt. Skaggs has been overseas for a year and one-half and is now in Germany awaiting redeployment. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Skaggs, 121 West Water street.

His address is as follows: S-Sgt. James R. Skaggs, ASN-35224579, Co. G, 32nd Armored Regt., APO 253, c-o PM, New York, N. Y.

T-Sgt. Russell Henry has returned to his home with his wife, Mrs. Margaret Adkins Henry in Columbus. Mrs. Adkins is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Adkins of East Main street. T-Sgt. Henry holds the Air Medal.

He was discharged at Camp Atterbury, Ind., Saturday and arrived home Sunday. He served overseas 19 months, mostly at Saipan, as a crew chief on a C-47 of the Ninth Troop Carrier Squadron of the Seventh Air Force. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry of Atlanta.

Pvt. Eleanor Strawser, daughter of Mrs. Gladys Wiggins, of North Court street, arrived home Tuesday to spend a 24-day furlough. Pvt. Strawser has been serving with the Air Technical Service Command at Oakland, Calif.

TM 2-C Jim Morrison, who was stationed at Key West, Fla., during the past 18 months, has been transferred to Pearl Harbor. His new address is as follows: Jim B. Morrison, T. M. 2-C-851-00-40, U. S. Naval Receiving Station, Navy Number 128-General Detail, c-o PM, San Francisco, Calif.

S 2-C John Muselman, USNR, route 1 Orient, is serving on the USS Wasp aircraft carrier with the 3rd Fleet on a victory cruise off Tokyo.

The Wasp's record week, March 14-20, is still the main topic of conversation aboard the carrier. The ship took a 500-pound bomb through the flight deck, suffering 102 casualties. Within 50 minutes she was ready to launch her planes.

In that week the Wasp and her planes shot down 14 aircraft and destroyed six on the ground, scored two 500-pound bomb hits on each of two enemy carriers, dropped two 1,000-pound bombs on a battleship, a 1,000-pounder on another battleship, three 500-pounders on a heavy cruiser, a 1,000-pounder on a big cargo ship and heavily strafed a large submarine.

Sgt. Sterling Christy of Amanda was one of hundreds of Ohio soldiers discharged from the armed forces at the Indiantown Gap, Pa., separation center.

First Lt. Lynn M. Borders of 52 West Pickaway street, Kingston, arrived at the Reception Station at Indiantown Gap, Pa., for redeployment Monday. Prior to redeployment, he will be given leave.

Major Edward L. Montgomery has returned to his home here on a terminal leave from his station at Camp Breckinridge, Ky. The popular local doctor will have been serving in the Army Medical Corps five years in October. He served in the Pacific area.

Charles Vernon Furness, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mack White of route 1 Circleville, Pickaway township, has arrived home Wednesday from 21 months service overseas. He received his discharge with 85 points at Camp Atterbury, Ind.

He has six battle stars. Four of his brothers are still in service. He and his wife of Amanda will be at home with his parents for awhile.

Pvt. Pearl Valentine telephoned avenue, Tuesday to report his arrival home. He lives at 377 Weldon street in the United States. He is being treated at Letherman's hospital in San Francisco for injuries received during the Philippines campaign. He reported his condition is "improved". His address is Pvt. Pearl W. Valentine 35293686, Letherman's hospital, Ward B2, San Francisco.

Pvt. Harry E. Robinson, son of Mrs. Clarence Robinson, 375 Weldon street, stationed with the Marines at Parris Island, reports he has seen no one from Circleville since his arrival there three months ago, shortly after his graduation from Circleville high school. His address is Pvt. Harry E. Robinson 1015658, Platoon 169, Fifth Receiving Barracks, Parris Island, S. C.

JOB RIGHTS
JOBLESS or severance pay is a rather new institution, but moving fast. A generation ago it would have been considered, in most cases, surprising or even absurd. The employer was supreme and the employee was usually considered lucky to have a job at all, not to mention one carrying with it a bonus on dismissal.
Now the United States Senate, which used to be called "reactionary", has approved a "jobless pay" plan under which the federal government extends the duration of state compensation payments to a maximum of 26 weeks. Only a few states have been so liberal as this. It is significant of the progress made by American labor and its growing power. And it leads some Americans, perhaps unduly, to talk of "labor governments" in the English sense, with a "labor President."
So far as can be seen now, that time—though it may come—is rather distant. The typical American ideal is still that of a government in which the President, whatever his political affiliations, generally does a good job of representing both sides.

HARD FACTS
THERE is no use in trying to evade the fact that the discoveries of the atomic bomb and the destructive uses to which it may be put have filled the civilized world with a profound sense of uneasiness. Apparently atomic weapons of such tremendous power as that which recently stopped the Japanese war can be produced at will by those who possess the secret—chief among whom is the United States government.
Obviously weapons that can be used to stop a big war in such summary fashion, by use of the basic powers of nature, can start a war just as easily when the secret and the materials are possessed. It is taken for granted that such a scientific leak may occur within a decade or so, if not sooner. And it is probably betraying no secret to say that the temporal and financial value of our little old Earth right now, in the celestial market, had fallen considerably.

Now Stalin would like a few billions; and come to think of it, we could use a little small change ourselves.

We've got a little list, we've got a little list, of Japanese offenders who never would be missed.

MacArthur is such a live wire that nearly everything he does suddenly becomes controversial.

There is progress of a sort. In one generation we've made the jump from toy balloons to atomic bombs.

Inside WASHINGTON
These Questions Might Embarrass Lord Keynes
Britain's Finance Boss Queried About Luxuries
By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist
WASHINGTON—Lord Keynes has come to Washington to tell the United States how much money Britain requires in order to reconvert British industries and to expand British trade.
Lord Keynes is a profound economist. So I should like to ask him a few questions. I shall probably be scolded well for asking the questions. But—here they go:
How much money does it cost to support the English royal family? How much in taxes got from the British people does it cost to keep the royal palaces and castles in purple and fine linen and satin-panted footmen?
How much does it cost to supply jewels and ermine robes to members of the royal family? To adorn their horses and decorate their royal coaches? What is the value of the estates allotted the royal family?
What is the value of the crown jewels that used to be on view in the Tower of London? Hunks of precious stones. Gobs of diamonds. Rubies and emeralds watched over by guards in velvet liveries.
Since Britain is once again in financial straits, is there not some way of cutting down on such medieval extravagance as these?
Would this lessening of the strain on the treasury avoid, possibly, the necessity of asking the United States for another loan? Call it "grant" this time.
Another question: Is it necessary for England to maintain such luxurious embassies abroad? England spends six times as much on its embassy in Washington as the United States spends on its embassy in London. England allows her ambassador a salary of $20,000 a year. The U. S. ambassador to London receives $12,500 a year.
For keeping up its embassy in Washington the English treasury allows $70,000. Of this sum $35,000 goes for expenses of "representa-

UP AND DOWN BROADWAY
By JACK GAVES

NEW YORK, Sept. 26—The first item of a limping new theatrical season that can lay any claim at all to raising audience temperatures stems from, of all people, a Hollywood personality, "The Ryan Girl" is the play and Edmund Goulding is the personality.

Of course Goulding originally was a Broadway practitioner, but it is a popular (and not too erroneous) generality that even six months in the celluloid mines will ruin a playwright for stage purposes. And Goulding has been away from the theater for 42 times six months, or 21 years as the calendar manufacturers insist on recording it.

Goulding, who has been in Hollywood so long that scarcely anyone remembers him as anything but one of the 10 or 12 very best film directors, made his Broadway return the hard way—by writing a melodrama. This type of play was easy stuff in the old days when the public was less leop and more credulous, but it's tough to do a good one in these sensation-sated times.

Now, I've seen better melos than "The Ryan Girl," and in it June Havoc is hardly the latter day Jeanne Eagels that some of the advance ballyhoo would make her, but both play and actress are on the credit side. A big help, too, is Edmund Lowe, another Hollywood minion who hasn't set foot on a Broadway stage in 23 years. Regular old home week.

Goulding said he wrote "The Ryan Girl" because he got mad. It seems that he's always doing successful things because someone rouses his Irish, which is what he has plenty of, being a native.

For instance, there was the time back in the early twenties when he went down to Philadelphia to consult with novelist Joseph Hergesheimer about making a picture. The writer did considerable poo-pooing of things Hollywood, implying that a denizen thereof would be pushed to write his name. Goulding came back to New York mad clear through, holed up in the Algonquin hotel and didn't stir out of the place for 11 weeks while he wrote a novel of the sea called "Fury." Critics hailed it and, better yet, it sold hugely.

"The critics called me a master of sea stories," Goulding recalled. "They classed me with Conrad and Jack London. The fact is that I don't know a thing about seafaring."

No more plays (until now). One day who wrote that famous hit play "The Fool," got a bit pompous and condescending over Hollywood filming his masterpiece. He guessed the boys would ruin it. This set Goulding off again and he turned out a play called "Dancing Mothers," in which Helen Hayes played and which was one of the "10 best" of the 1924-25 season.

No more play s (until now). One day he was making a talking picture and was trying to get a special musical background. A Hungarian composer named Joshua Zero said he didn't know do from re, Goulding said he hadn't been a choir boy in St. Paul's cathedral for nothing and he proceeded to dash off in anger a slight composition that (with words from Elsie Janis) became the ever popular "Love, Your Magic Spell is Everywhere."

As for "The Ryan Girl," that came out of anger stemming from disappointment. He came to New York over a year ago (Continued on Page Six)

Complications and Danger of Infection in the Middle Ear

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.
SHORT or long-lasting infections of the middle part of the ear are frequent. In themselves, such infections are damaging to the ear structures and may lead to deafness, but there is a far greater danger in the complications which may arise from such ear infections.
One such complication is mastoiditis or inflammation of the air cells in the bone back of the ear.
Treating Infection
In treating most ear infections nowadays the sulfonamide drugs or penicillin are used and it is true that this treatment has a favorable effect on the ear infection. However, the drawback to the use of these preparations is that they may hide mastoiditis, should it develop. This means that when penicillin or the sulfonamide drugs are used, they must be properly employed.
According to Doctor Ian B. Thorburn of England, the following suggestions may well be followed: If the ear drum is bulging, it should be cut open, particularly if the patient has persistent pain. The sulfonamide drugs should be given as soon as possible in the proper dose. The patient should then be seen regularly for several weeks even after the infection has apparently cleared up completely.
Whenever a person has an infection of the middle ear he should be under the care of a physician, and this care should continue until it is certain that the infection has vanished completely.
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
M. G.: Can a person who has had an operation for ulcers eat honey, drink weak tea or eat oyster stew?
Answer:—It is not likely that the foods you mention would be of any harm.

For Wednesday, September 26
A SUDDEN coup may affect the affairs, with the fortunes, objectives and ambitions reaching toward high goals with rich rewards and gratifications. Such a dynamic move, especially if boldly developed and sustained by reason and sound sense, may produce results of major importance and far-reaching significance upon the life and its destiny.
Under a benign and expanding influence, with the facilities and energies keyed to great ventures, others in high position may prove of utmost importance, with capital, preferment, social and business.
How Will We Benefit, M' Lord?
Lord Keynes, the British economist, who is now in our midst, is a charming and plausible fellow. I enjoy the Cambridgeian aristocracy with which he answers such questions as:
"You say, sir, that a grant of three billion upwards to you from us would be mutually beneficial? Will you explain in what way we would be benefited?"
"Ah!" replies Lord Keynes, looking every twelfth inch the Chairman of the Board. "It is conceivable that the inevitable solution to this and other problems that arise between us will be a wise solution."
I hope so, for the sake of the American taxpayer.

"I'M SUSY ADAMS," the blond girl proffered. "Belinda's mother."
Her self-introduction was superfluous. Sandra knew who she was. Her appearance proved her identity by bringing back the words Belinda had spoken that late afternoon when she stood before Sandra's dressing table mirror.
"Curly hair—big blue eyes—The little girl had not said: 'Dimples,' but she had touched her cheeks with her forefinger, a gesture that meant nothing at the time. Now, gazing at Gordon Adams' wife, Sandra knew what Belinda had been expressing with pantomime.
The child's description had made her mother sound like a round, pink-cheeked doll. Regretfully Sandra was learning that quite the opposite was true. Susy Adams was everything her daughter had claimed, yet instead of possessing a shallow beauty she possessed the sort that maddened. Women, because they wanted to look like her. Men, because they wanted to make love to her.
Sandra realized all this and felt jealousy, hatred, fear and other emotions, all bad, rushing through her. It seemed she had been sitting for hours in the dazzling blaze of Susy's smile; however, only a scant second had been necessary for those unattractive thoughts to attack her.
Somehow she forced the muscles of her suddenly sore throat and made them function. "I'm Sandra Edwards," she said.
"Of course! No wonder you seemed familiar to me. You are with Wakeman-Benet."
Sandra nodded, then again made her throat grapple for words. "But I can't have met you, Mrs. Adams. I'd remember you if I had. You are a person," she found herself saying unwillingly, "who is always remembered."
Susy Adams smiled her pleasure. A smile appeared on Sandra's lips also, brilliant but thoroughly professional. She found she could not look at Gordon's wife for more than a brief second. That blond loveliness hurt too much. Once again, Sandra felt as if a human hand were tight about her throat. She glanced down at her own feet, then began tying and untying the yarn ankle straps of her Mexican sandals.
Still flashing the dimpled smile that made her so friendly and appealing, Susy Adams was saying: "Oh, we've never met. But I've seen and admired you at the store. And naturally I admire your clothes. I try to stop at Chicago at least twice a year and buy your entire collection."
"I'm flattered."
"No, you're not. Your things are worth buying and you know it."
Again came her flashing smile. If I did not know who she is, thought Sandra, I'd like her very much. As it is, I can't possibly. I'm out of my mind, she despaired. How can one be so ravishing? Sandra demanded of herself. The most extreme and generous calculation could not make Susy Adams younger than 16 or 17 when Belinda was born. That would make her 28 or 29 now. And she was more. For some reason Sandra knew it, in spite of the blonde's flawless face and figure.
Sandra wanted more than anything to get up, walk away from Gordon Adams' wife and hide in her own rooms, where she felt at home. There she could try to answer the pounding questions that frightened her. Also, she prayed that she would be able to relieve the shame that was nauseating her. Shame for having fallen in love with another woman's husband.
It seemed incredible, now that Susy was a person, an exquisite flesh and blood person, that she could have made such a mistake. But, came Sandra's self-defense, until this moment Susy had not seemed real. Despite the remarks of Brody, Belinda and of Gordon himself, Mrs. Gordon Adams had seemed just an unseen influence, unattractive and inhuman.
Sandra decided not to wait for any quixotic overture from Spencer. She would telephone him, make him leave Hudson's and they would go somewhere. Oh, she had been so foolish! And Gordon had been such a fool! The red-haired girl found herself despising him. Yet she knew she could not so much as move away from the swimming pool so long as there was a chance of seeing him.
Susy Adams was making small talk: "How long have you been here?"
Sandra answered truthfully, feeling that the blond girl did not really care, but considered pleasant conversation her duty.
"But how can you be away from Wakeman-Benet at this time of the year? Isn't this a very busy season?"
"Every season is a busy one. That's my trouble. I've been too busy." Quickly she explained her nervous breakdown from overwork. "I'm jittery as a bat, weak as a kitten."
"I can well believe it," Susy said. "I've lost count of the number of times you've tied and untied your sandal straps. Relax, dear."
Instead of relaxation, Sandra felt tension travel along her spine. A casual endearment from Gordon Adams' wife acted as the sting of a whip.
"Cigaret?" queried Susy, extending a stunning case of dark tortoise decorated with a ruby deer.
"Thanks, no. I'm not smoking. Part of my cure."
"Of course. How stupid of me. Still, a cigaret sometimes calms me."
"I'd flutter," announced Sandra. But it would not be the cigaret, she said to herself. It would be Susy.
"Are you and Bob Wakeman in love?"
In response to that blunt question Sandra stared at Belinda's mother. Shortly after she murmured: "Heavens, no! He was simply being kind to me, helping me get into the Mesquite. I was in trouble. Bob is kind to everyone," she finished somewhat feebly.
Something, perhaps the smoke from her cigaret, appeared to have changed Susy Adams' face. For an instant it was shrewd, prying. Yes, it was the smoke, for now it shifted and she was her smiling, congenial self.
"You are right. Bob is kind. He's a peach." Her voice abruptly sounded tired, unhappy. "He is about the only friend my husband has left. A person cannot be as unconventional as Gordon is—I'm aware that his behavior is no secret to you. That is why I speak freely. No one can be so awful and keep friends."
The red-haired girl wanted to say that everyone in Copper Creek seemed exceedingly fond of Gordon Adams. Instead she said: "Mr. Adams doesn't seem to want friends."
"Oh? Has he been that horrid to you?" Susy gave a sympathetic cluck.
"I've really seen very little of Mr. Adams," Sandra said stiffly.
Susy gave a little chuckle. "You've seen enough of him—by your own words—to know he does not want friends." A second little chuckle rang out. "So handsome. But such a snore! And so rough. And poor little Belinda—just like him, only worse. She isn't even good looking." Her voice snagged on a quick breath. "Why are you staring at me so strangely?"
"I was just thinking, you are the first mother I've ever seen who didn't think her child beautiful."
"Really, Miss Edwards, it is not a sacrilege. I simply state a truth. I'm fond of Belinda. When she is a young lady she'll have almost a quarter of a million. She'll have far more when I am dead. She'll have all my eastern property and my California property and all my jewels. To say nothing of my half of this ranch which, by the way, is a fine paying affair." She cast a pitying glance toward the red-haired girl. "Don't feel sorry for Belinda just because she is homely, Miss Edwards." Susy sniffed insolently. "She'll do all right in spite of it."
A new-born smile of contentment was on Sandra Edwards' face. She smiled because Belinda's new appearance was going to astound her conceited mother. Sandra smiled also because now she could look at Susy Adams without a bit of trouble. Susy was not pretty now. It did not hurt to look at her.
Sandra knew Gordon was approaching, although her back was turned. Susy's actions indicated the presence of a third person. And then she called out: "Hello, Gordon, my love—"
That drawled, jeering endearment did not seem to bother the man. "Glad you're here, Susy. I want to talk with you."
"You'll have plenty of time. I intend," she assured him, "to stay for a long, long while."

UP AND DOWN BROADWAY

By JACK GAVEN

NEW YORK, Sept. 26—The first item of a limping new theatrical season that can lay any claim at all to raising audience temperatures stems from, of all people, a Hollywood personality, "The Ryan Girl" is the play and Edmund Goulding is the personality.

Of course Goulding originally was a Broadway practitioner, but it is a popular (and not too erroneous) generality that even six months in the celluloid mines will ruin a playwright for stage purposes. And Goulding has been away from the theater for 42 times six months, or 21 years as the calendar manufacturers insist on recording it.

Goulding, who has been in Hollywood so long that scarcely anyone remembers him as anything but one of the 10 or 12 very best film directors, made his Broadway return the hard way—by writing a melodrama. This type of play was easy stuff in the old days when the public was less hep and more credulous, but it's tough to do a good one in these sensation-sated times.

Now, I've seen better melos than "The Ryan Girl," and in it June Havoc is hardly the latter day Jeanne Eagels that some of the advance ballyhoo would make her, but both play and actress are on the credit side. A big help, too, is Edmund Lowe, another Hollywood minion who hasn't set foot on a Broadway stage in 23 years. Regular old home week.

Goulding said he wrote "The Ryan Girl" because he got mad. It seems that he's always doing successful things because someone rouses his Irish, which is what he has plenty of, being a native.

For instance, there was the time back in the early twenties when he went down to Philadelphia to consult with novelist Joseph Hergesheimer about making a picture. The writer did considerable poo-pooing of things Hollywood, implying that a denizen thereof would be pushed to write his name. Goulding came back to New York mad clear through, holed up in the Algonquin hotel and didn't stir out of the place for 11 weeks while he wrote a novel of the sea called "Fury." Critics hailed it and, better yet, it sold hugely.

"The critics called me a master of sea stories," Goulding recalled. "They classed me with Conrad and Jack London. The fact is that I don't know a thing about seafaring."

No more plays (until now). One day who wrote that famous hit play "The Fool," got a bit pompous and condescending over Hollywood filming his masterpiece. He guessed the boys would ruin it. This set Goulding off again and he turned out a play called "Dancing Mothers," in which Helen Hayes played and which was one of the "10 best" of the 1924-25 season.

No more play s (until now). One day he was making a talking picture and was trying to get a special musical background. A Hungarian composer named Joshua Zero said he didn't know do from re. Goulding said he hadn't been a choir boy in St. Paul's cathedral for nothing and he proceeded to dash off in anger a slight composition that (with words from Elsie Janis) became the ever popular "Love, Your Magic Spell is Everywhere."

As for "The Ryan Girl," that came out of anger stemming from disappointment. He came to New York over a year ago

Complications and Danger of Infection in the Middle Ear

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.
SHORT or long-lasting infections of the middle part of the ear are frequent. In themselves, such infections are damaging to the ear structures and may lead to deafness, but there is a far greater danger in the complications which may arise from such ear infections.

One such complication is mastoiditis or inflammation of the ear cells in the bone back of the ear.

Treating Infection
In treating most ear infections nowadays the sulfonamide drugs or penicillin are used and it is true that this treatment has a favorable effect on the ear infection. However, the drawback to the use of these preparations is that they may hide mastoiditis, should it develop. This means that when penicillin or the sulfonamide drugs are used, they must be properly employed.

According to Doctor Ian B. Thorburn of England, the following suggestions may well be followed: If the ear drum is bulging, it should be cut open, particularly if the patient has persistent pain. The sulfonamide drugs should be given as soon as possible in the proper dose. The patient should then be seen regularly for several weeks even after the infection has apparently cleared up completely.

HARD FACTS

THERE is no use in trying to evade the fact that the discoveries of the atomic bomb and the destructive uses to which it may be put have filled the civilized world with a profound sense of uneasiness. Apparently atomic weapons of such tremendous power as that which recently stopped the Japanese war can be produced at will by those who possess the secret—chief among whom is the United States government.

Obviously weapons that can be used to stop a big war in such summary fashion, by use of the basic powers of nature, can start a war just as easily when the secret and the materials are possessed. It is taken for granted that such a scientific leak may occur within a decade or so, if not sooner. And it is probably betraying no secret to say that the temporal and financial value of our little old Earth right now, in the celestial market, had fallen considerably.

Now Stalin would like a few billions; and come to think of it, we could use a little small change ourselves.

We've got a little list, we've got a little list, of Japanese offenders who never would be missed.

MacArthur is such a live wire that nearly everything he does suddenly becomes controversial.

There is progress of a sort. In one generation we've made the jump from toy balloons to atomic bombs.

These Questions Might Embarrass Lord Keynes Britain's Finance Boss Queried About Luxuries

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—Lord Keynes has come to Washington to tell the United States how much money Britain requires in order to reconvert British industries and to expand British trade.

Lord Keynes is a profound economist. So I should like to ask him a few questions. I shall probably be scolded well for asking the questions. But—here they go:

How much money does it cost to support the English royal family? How much in taxes got from the British people does it cost to keep the royal palaces and castles in purple and fine linen and satin-pantled footmen?

How much does it cost to supply jewels and ermine robes to members of the royal family? To adorn their horses and decorate their royal coaches? What is the value of the estates allotted the royal family?

What is the value of the crown jewels that used to be on view in the Tower of London? Hunks of precious stones. Gobs of diamonds. Rubies and emeralds watched over by guards in velvet liveries.

Since Britain is once again in financial straits, is there not some way of cutting down on such medieval extravagance as these?

Would this lessening of the strain on the treasury avoid, possibly, the necessity of asking the United States for another loan? Call it "grant" this time.

Another question: Is it necessary for England to maintain such luxurious embassies abroad? England spends six times as much on its embassy in Washington as the United States spends on its embassy in London. England allows her ambassador a salary of $20,000 a year. The U. S. ambassador to London receives $12,500 a year. For keeping up its embassy in Washington the English treasury allots $70,000. Of this sum $35,000 goes for expenses of "representation." The other $35,000 is for "upkeep and entertaining." For "official entertaining and upkeep" of its embassy in London the United States government allots its ambassador $5,400! The sum of $1,080 is given its London ambassador to "cover the difference in living expenses in America and England!" Think of it! $1,080!

And here's the biggest joke—the ambassador of the richest country on earth, the country that is too often prepared, at the call of a suave delegation, to "lend" millions or billions or whatever is required—I'm speaking of your country and mine—allots $4,000 a year for the rental of a U. S. embassy in London! If the Rent Control board had cut your Aunt Minnie down to that amount for the rental of her house in Chevy Chase, she would have felt outraged! Britain pays all of her diplomats well and sees that they live in a manner tending to prove the importance of the British empire. The United States pays her diplomats penuriously. The State Department files, listing salaries paid our representatives to the ranking powers, show annotations something like this:

"It is not recommended that this post be accepted by a man without a large private income. The last ambassador paid out of his own funds the amount of so-many-dollars. This amount was necessary to run the embassy and to entertain properly."

It is barely possible that we in the United States are too generous with foreign supplicants and too stingy with our own people. It obviously does not occur to the British treasury that it might save some money, quite a little in fact, by being less lavish with its pomp and circumstance at home and abroad.

I suppose two of the reasons why the old world comes to us so often with its hat in its hand, are these: we have plenty to give and it boosts our national ego to play Lady Bountiful among the nations.

Lord Keynes, the British economist, who is now in our midst, is a charming and plausible fellow. I enjoy the Cambridgeian artistry with which he answers such questions as:

"You say, sir, that a grant of from three billion upwards to you from us would be mutually beneficial? Will you explain in what way we would be benefited?"

"Ah!" replies Lord Keynes, looking every twelfth inch the Chairman of the Board. "It is conceivable that the inevitable solution to this and other problems that arise between us will be a wise solution."

I hope so, for the sake of the American taxpayer.

If today is your natal day, you are diligent, enthusiastic in your work, but lack the virtue of concentration. You lose interest quickly. You have a talent for music, and are fond of good books. Your love is deep and you are unwavering in devotion. Watch out for the hidden meaning behind the words of others on this, your birthday. Analyze everything you hear, for there may be some ulterior motive at work today, and you will avoid the ill results of action following it by being on the alert.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

IMAGINATION PRICELESS
AMONG THE priceless ingredients in contract bridge is a keen imagination. Ability to infer soundly the kind of holding which caused your partner's action is especially essential to skillful bidding. It often enables you to figure out with extreme accuracy just how your own hand fits his, and therefore what the pair can do with its 26 cards.

Spades, the bidding could have proceeded easily with South's cue-bid of clubs. North's fit-showing of hearts and then the grand slam by South—or, if he felt conservative, only 6-Hearts, which would not require the probable trump break.

North's spade blank was almost as good as an ace, maybe better, surely better when South could rebid hearts at the four level. If North, with those other side honors, could not visualize what South had to have for his bid, his imagination can stand a lot of cultivation. Seldom, if ever, will he ever find a more compelling spot for a slam invitation.

Of course, East should have started with clubs, not spades, but that point hasn't been raised.

O. E. S. Chapter Honors Founder Robert Morris

Author and Poet Worked Long For Masonry

Robert Morris, founder of the Order of Eastern Star was eulogized at the meeting of the local chapter at the meeting held in the Masonic temple, Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Frank Boling gave a very descriptive paper on the life and work of the man who made the order a possibility by his untiring efforts in Masonic work.

He was a native of Boston, Mass., being born August 31, 1818. He was an author of note and also a poet of renown. Many of his poems were written about the work of the masonic lodges and after the institution of the Order of Eastern Star, that also was made the subject of many verses. Some hymns written by Mr. Morris are still being used in Masonic work.

In 1859, Mrs. Boling told her audience, Mr. Morris located in Lexington, Ky. where he resided until his death in 1888.

The meeting was conducted by Mrs. Emmitt Barnhart, matron and J. Sam Morris, patron of the local chapter with about 30 members and guests being present. Mr. and Mrs. George Fishpaw, who are patron and matron, respectively of the Massillon chapter were guests. Mrs. Barnhart welcomed them to the meeting and both Mr. and Mrs. Fishpaw responded with short talks. Mr. Fishpaw is the local manager of the J. C. Penny store and together with Mrs. Fishpaw carry on their work at Massillon, driving over for each meeting.

Mrs. Joe Brink was in charge of the program which consisted of the reading by Mrs. Bowling, a poem by Mrs. Paul Counts "The Level and the Square" written by Robert Morris and the reading of a hymn written by him which was read by Miss Virginia Marion. Piano duets, "Tea for Two" and "Two Guitars" were played by Mrs. Leon Van Vleet and Mrs. Robert Goodchild. The program was put on by past Esthers of the chapter.

Mrs. Barnhart announced the October 9 meeting would be a Halloween Party and the program would be in charge of the past Marthas and Electas of the chapter. Mrs. Cecil Noecker, chairman, Mrs. Carl Bennett, Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, Mrs. Chester Noecker, Mrs. Tom Wilson, Mrs. James Paulsgrove, Mrs. Paul Counts, Mrs. Dwight Steele, Miss Doris Schreiner, Mrs. Turney Ross, Mrs. Charles Smith and Mrs. G. H. Adkins.

Refreshments for the party will be in charge of a committee composed of Mrs. Louis Mebs, Mrs. Roy Beatty, Mrs. Harry Griner, Mrs. N. E. Reichelderfer, Mrs. O. J. Towers and Mrs. Robert Pickens.

Arrangements were also made for members of the chapter to meet at the temple, next Friday at 10:30 a. m. to refinish the chairs for the chapter room. A covered dish lunch will be served. Members are also asked to bring a paint brush.

looking for a good play, or prepared to lay $5,000 advance on the line for anyone who's talent he could respect who would write one for him. Couldn't find a soul who was available. He was bemoaning his fate at the players club during a card game one night and Fulton Oursler said he might try looking up a fellow who had a hit in New York some 18 years ago. Busy with the cards, Goulding told Oursler to write down the name and address. When he looked at the slip of paper later, it bore his own name.

Thus last night's opening at the Plymouth theatre. But not as easily done as that.

"I wrote eight versions in 13 months," he said. "In that time I did nothing else. I refused two pictures which normally I would have done, which meant passing up some $200,000. Some producer friends of me begged me to give it up as a bad job. I went to Lee Shubert (co-producer with Albert de Courville and unadvertised—Goulding) and asked if he'd take a chance on the play. He said not on the play, but on my reputation. He hasn't read the play to this day."

The audiences are getting dressier and dressier. Among those present was Gypsy Rose Lee, beaming over the work of her sister, June Havoc, and sporting a Grecian hair-do and a chinchilla scarf long enough to use for a roller towel.

TOP GRID TEAMS IN TOUGH GAMES ON OHIO CARD

COLUMBUS, Sept. 26 — Four contenders for Ohio high school football honors collide head-on this week, as teams throughout the state swing into regular league competition.

Canton McKinley travels to Warren for a game which will knock at least one of these leaders out of the perfect-record class. Both had narrow escapes last week, Warren taking a 7-6 battle from Steubenville, while McKinley scraped by a surprising Youngstown Woodrow Wilson team, 12-6.

At Toledo, Waite and Libbey meet in a game which may determine the city championship, and give the winner a commanding position in the fight for the hypothetical state title.

Massillon, having gained stature in its 24-6 victory over a tough Weirton, W. Va., team, expects an easier time this week against Canton Lincoln.

The Cincinnati area will see another battle between undefeated teams when Roger Bacon tackles Hamilton Public.

Three Central Ohio League teams with unmarred seasons face dangerous opposition. Strong Zanesville Lash goes to Lancaster, while Philadelphia plays Akron Garfield, while Newark meets the Dover team beaten by Garfield last week.

Other games involving undefeated, untied schools include Mansfield at once-beaten Sandusky, high scoring East Liverpool at Alliance, and Upper Sandusky at Ada.

In celebration of V-J day, cooks of a Seabee battalion in the Pacific baked a 32-layer, 600-pound cake topped with pink frosting and a sugared V-J.

TIGERS PLAY TWICE TODAY

Detroit Club Wants To Win American League Flag On Playing Field

DETROIT, Sept. 26—The Detroit Tigers, who were inept mudders in a vital game at Washington last week, faced the necessity of playing a double header on a sloppy diamond today. They have to win both against the Cleveland Indians to clinch the pennant.

The Tiger management indicated everything possible would be done to put the playing field in condition even if rains continue through the morning. The sentiment was that they want to win the pennant on the playing field and not "sitting it out" which is what will happen if the games are postponed.

Detroit has two open dates on Thursday and Friday before going to St. Louis to finish with the Browns, but Cleveland has a two-day engagement with the Missourians before the Tigers move in. And the games are necessary since Cleveland still has a mathematical chance to break into the first division ahead of New York, while St. Louis needs to win to protect its third place position.

The Tigers still need one victory to clinch a tie with the idle Washington Senators who finished their season Sunday.

Washington faced a similar cancellation situation last week in the final game of the season with the Tigers. Needing a victory to stay in the race, the Senators went out and drubbed Detroit, 12 to 5. The Tigers, who have a number of players with cranky ankles and "game legs" need firm footing to be effective.

The management had another reason for wanting the games to be played. There still is a chance, if a capacity crowd attends the double bill, to set a new all-time major league attendance record, surpassing the season mark of 1,289,422 paying customers, set by the Yankees of 1920. The Tigers need 51,102 fans to break that mark and they have had crowds of that size on several occasions this season.

Manager Steve O'Neill said he saw no disadvantage in yesterday's postponement, cramming two games into one day. He said he would stick with his pitching choices of Alton Benton and Hal Newhouse, leaving Dizzy Trout and Newhouse, if necessary for the Brown games.

Allie Reynolds and Steve Gromek, two outstanding pitchers, were due for the tribe.

In the only American League game played yesterday, the Browns topped the White Sox at Chicago, 5 to 1 on Al Hollingsworth's steady eight-hit pitching.

BILLY CONN OUT OF ARMY, READY TO FIGHT AGAIN

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 26 — Billy Conn, the world's No. 1 heavyweight challenger, was back home today in civilian clothes for a brief rest before resuming ring activities aimed at winning the championship from Sgt. Joe Louis next June.

Ex-Corporal Conn received his honorable discharge from the Army at Camp Lee, Va., yesterday after being in service more than three years including 18 months overseas.

While in the Army, he gave more than 300 exhibitions in the United States and abroad. He said this action kept him in "pretty good shape." He put on some weight, scaling 190 pounds. This is 16 more than when he almost wrestled the title from Louis at New York on June 18, 1941, but was knocked out in the 13th round.

He plans to make his first civilian ring appearance in an exhibition at Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 7, during a fight show featuring "Sugar" Ray Robinson, top welterweight contender. He may fight at New York for Mike Jacobs within the next three months.

Gets Old Shirt Back

FORT LEONARD WOOD, Mo.,—Cpl. Mort Stallings thought there was something familiar about an extra shirt he received in his laundry bundle this week. Finally he found a laundry mark indicating that—yes, the shirt belonged to him three years ago. He had turned it in for salvage in 1943 while stationed in Arizona, and somehow it had found its way back to him.

14,283 HIGGINS CRAFT
NEW ORLEANS.—During the war Higgins Industries, Inc. here built 14,283 combat craft for the Navy at a total cost of $130,000,000.

CUBS ALMOST SEW UP TITLE WITH 6-5 WIN

Cardinals' Three-Year Reign Over National League All But Ended

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—The St. Louis Cardinals' three-year reign over the National League was all but ended today.

Beaten at their own game, the ability to rally when the chips are down, the Cardinals now can only hang on and hope the league-leading Cubs collapse during the final five days of the season.

The Cubs came from behind to nose out the world champions, 6 to 5, yesterday on a slippery, rain-soaked field before 21,138 fans at Wrigley field, dropping the Cardinals two and a half games behind.

But the league leaders did more than beat the Cardinals by one run. They way they snatched the game out of the fire took something out of the cocky, swashbuckling Missourians who have been sure all season they would win their fourth consecutive National League pennant this year.

Actually, the Cardinals' hope for a World Series in St. Louis next week is about as thin as a dream.

The fading champions' only chance would be if the Cubs lose at least three of their remaining six games. Even then the Missourians would have to sweep their remaining five games merely to tie.

That herculean task was squarely before them today as Southworth sent Charley (Red) Barrett, 23-game winner, against the Cubs' Claude Passeau in the final game of the regular season at Wrigley field. It is the last time the two teams meet this year.

The crack of Andy Pafko's bat in lining that double down the left field line yesterday in the seventh inning sounded the death knell to the Cardinals.

The slugging Slovak's two-run blow climaxed a four-run Cub rally that gave the league leaders the victory and knocked out Harry Brecheen, who had whipped the Cubs four previous times this season.

Then the Cards made a last-ditch stand to score two runs in the eighth and send Henry (Hank) Borowy, who was credited with the victory, to the showers. But Gray Ray (Pappy) Prim, came in to throttle the Cardinal uprising.

If that victory finally proves decisive, the credit must go to 24-year-old Pafko and 35-year-old Prim.

The Cubs actually fought back twice to overcome Cardinal leads. In the first inning, the Red Birds opened with two runs. But the Cubs came right back to tie it up in their half on a walk, singles by Don Johnson and Phil Cavarretta and Brecheen's error.

Again the defending champions went ahead of the challengers. Buster Adams' single in the fifth plus a sacrifice by cleanup hitter George Kuroski and a rifle single by Ray Sanders gave the Cards a 3 to 2 lead.

But came the seventh and the Cubs tore a page out of the Cardinals' manual of attack and rallied with four big runs.

While this climactic action was taking place here, the Brooklyn Dodgers tightened their hold on third place by whipping the New York Giants, 7 to 4. Goody Rosen's three-run homer in the ninth inning snapped a 4 to 4 tie and gave Vic Lombardi his 10th triumph of the season. The only other game scheduled, Pittsburgh at Cincinnati, was postponed because of rain.

COON DOG TRIAL IS FEATURE OF LONDON EVENT

One of the main features of the Jamboree which will be staged by the Madison County Fish and Game Association at the Madison County Fair Grounds, London, September 30, will be the coon dog field trial. A guaranteed purse of $300 is offered.

Other events include pony races, a trap shoot, bird dog and beagle hunt, bench show, bait and fly casting tournament.

R. K. Connor, president of the association, has named a number of committees which have been working on the various phases of the jamboree. Entries in all departments indicate that there is much interest in the event throughout the state, especially in central Ohio. A large attendance is expected.

Refreshments and eats will be available at 11 a. m. and the jamboree program will start at 1 p. m. (slow time) rain or shine.

1945, is right at home setting radio records of one kind or another. For instance, "Bachelor's Children" has had the same author as well as the same cast of principals for all those years.

RADIO NEWS NOTES

A dramatic plea for tolerance in the American tradition was the highlight on Frank Sinatra's show last week. Sinatra, explaining that he is of Italian extraction, pointed up the spirit of American fair play. He said that peoples of all extractions, races and creeds had contributed to blood banks and that it was these Americans who shaped the tremendous victory that followed the Pearl Harbor debacle.

There's no heading off Phil Bakers' "Take It Or Leave It." The Sunday night series is still the number one quiz show on the networks. As a matter of fact, it is the only quiz to rate among the top fifteen network evening commercials according to the latest listening survey.

Better Living Conditions Urged By County Health Commissioner

SLUM RIDDANCE WOULD IMPROVE CITY'S HEALTH

Dr. Blackburn Hopes Board Set Up By Legislature Is Effective

"There is no one thing that would better the health of a community more than to replace its slums with better living conditions," Dr. A. D. Blackburn, Pickaway county health officer, stated Tuesday in commenting upon the setting up of a commission by the last session of the Ohio Legislature to study slum clearance.

The commission will study slum conditions and make a report to the Legislature. The Legislature would then consider possible legislation to do away with slums.

"If slum clearance could be accomplished, it would be a wonderful thing for Cleveland and every other municipality," Dr. Blackburn asserted.

In defining slum clearance, Dr. Blackburn said, "Slum clearance is for each municipality to provide better living quarters to replace those slums."

"This is a problem that will have to be solved by each local community with possible state and federal aid."

"We have slums everywhere. The only way you can overcome this is with public funds."

"It would take a great deal of time, money, and effort to clear up the slum situation, but it is possible with strong backing of local groups."

"The condition that should be corrected exists in every city and town and up to the present time there has been no good solution to the problem."

Slums are a health problem, Dr. Blackburn stated, because of the unsanitary conditions prevailing in them. Sanitation laws have so far been inadequate to fully meet the need, he said.

"The people who live in slums cannot better their own condition because of poverty. They have no incentive to keep clean living in such sordid surroundings. If they had better houses, some of them would have a better incentive to keep clean."

Dr. Blackburn will attend the state convention of health commissioners in Columbus Friday. He will attend sessions of discussion of present status of the control measures against rabies and against communicable diseases.

Health legislation passed during the last session reported by the Ohio Federation of Public Health Officers to Dr. Blackburn included the appropriation of one million dollars for control and eradication of Bangs disease, a provision that the Mt. Vernon Tuberculosis Sanatorium would be used exclusively for the care of mentally ill, mentally deficient and epileptic persons suffering from tuberculosis, effective September 28, and a prenatal blood test law for syphilis, that was effective August 22.

The legislature also set up a commission to study means to strengthen the law relating to the pollution of streams. The legislature also changed the time of the meeting of the advisory councils of general health districts which meets once a year in each county and set up a uniform rate of pay and expenses of $5 per day per member. The rate had previously been set locally.

NINE INDUCTED FROM PICKAWAY DRAFT BOARD

Induction of nine men called by the Pickaway county draft board into the armed forces was announced Wednesday. These men who have passed their physical examinations and have been sworn into service are as follows:

Army: Robert Floyd Garner, 133 Logan street, Circleville, Bobbie Gene Morgan, RFD No. 4, Logan, Paul Frederick Stevens, 364 Walnut street, Circleville, William Rushton Sturgell, 225 Scioto street, Ashville, Roy Paxton, RFD No. 3, Circleville, George William Heffner Towers, Circleville, Lloyd Dwight Swank, 11601 Randolph street, Ashville, Clifford Pete Keaton, South Washington street, Circleville.

Navy: Frank Eugene Smith, 513 East Second street, Dayton.

Set Vast 'Smoke' Fire
TONGRES, Belgium.—Pranksters set a gigantic bonfire in scores of crates of highly concentrated fumigating smoke in Allied army stores and incidentally forced the evacuation of many residents causing thousands of dollars worth of crop damage.

Dogs Pull Fire Truck

CHEYENNE, Wyo.—Firemen here hope they never will be in a predicament where they will have to use dog teams to pull their trucks, but it can be done, if necessary, they found out recently. As a part of Cheyenne's Frontier Day observance, an 18-dog sled team pulled a two-and-one-half-ton fire truck on which a two-ton load had been placed. Trainers of the dogs had to trot to keep up with the animals.

Wasted Words

DENVER, Col.—There's no question about it! A want-ad recently run in a local paper reported: "LOST—1-tooth removable dental bridge, white metal, of no value except to owner."

Plans Made For Bosses Day Dinner And Thanksgiving Eve Dance

Gil Bolin, field executive of the Boy Scouts of America, stressed the need for Senior Boy Scouting in Circleville in his talk before the Junior Chamber of Commerce in Hanley's Tuesday night.

Senior Scouting, he explained, is a program designed for boys 15-18 years of age to help fill the gap from Boy Scouts to manhood. The three branches are Air Scouts, Explorer Scouts, and Sea Scouts.

Mr. Bolin presented the Jaycees with the renewal charter for Troop 121. Bob Dean, scoutmaster, was commended for his work and presented with his scoutmaster card and pin. Members of the Scouting committee were also given cards and pins.

The date was set as October 23 for the annual Bosses' Day dinner. Further plans were made for the Thanksgiving Eve dance with Boyd Stout, chairman, Jud Lanman, Richard Morris Jr. and Paul Rodenfels appointed on the dance committee.

An attendance pin was awarded Robert Hunter by John Moore, secretary, Willis Liston and Rich-

Better Living Conditions Urged By County Health Commissioner

SLUM RIDDANCE WOULD IMPROVE CITY'S HEALTH

Dr. Blackburn Hopes Board Set Up By Legislature Is Effective

"There is no one thing that would better the health of a community more than to replace its slums with better living conditions," Dr. A. D. Blackburn, Pickaway county health officer, stated Tuesday in commenting upon the setting up of a commission by the last session of the Ohio Legislature to study slum clearance.

The commission will study slum conditions and make a report to the Legislature. The Legislature would then consider possible legislation to do away with slums.

"If slum clearance could be accomplished, it would be a wonderful thing for Circleville and every other municipality," Dr. Blackburn asserted.

In defining slum clearance, Dr. Blackburn said, "Slum clearance is for each municipality to provide better living quarters to replace those slums."

"This is a problem that will have to be solved by each local community with possible state and federal aid."

"We have slums everywhere. The only way you can overcome this is with public funds."

"It would take a great deal of time, money, and effort to clear up the slum situation, but it is possible with strong backing of local groups."

"The condition that should be corrected exists in every city and town and up to the present time there has been no good solution to the problem."

Slums are a health problem, Dr. Blackburn stated, because of the unsanitary conditions prevailing in them. Sanitation laws have so far been inadequate to fully meet the need, he said.

"The people who live in slums cannot better their own condition because of poverty. They have no incentive to keep clean living in such sordid surroundings. If they had better houses, some of them would have a better incentive to keep clean."

Dr. Blackburn will attend the state convention of health commissioners in Columbus Friday. He will attend sessions of discussion of present status of the control measures against rabies and against communicable diseases.

Health legislation passed during the last session reported by the Ohio Federation of Public Health Officers to Dr. Blackburn included the appropriation of one million dollars for control and eradication of Bangs disease, a provision that the Mt. Vernon Tuberculosis Sanatorium would be used exclusively for the care of mentally ill, mentally deficient and epileptic persons suffering from tuberculosis, effective September 28, and a prenatal blood test law for syphilis, that was effective August 22.

The legislature also set up a commission to study means to strengthen the law relating to the pollution of streams. The legislature also changed the time of the meeting of the advisory councils of general health districts which meet once a year in each county and set up a uniform rate of pay and expenses of $3 per day per member. The rate had previously been set locally.
